WILSON RETAINS LEADERSHIP

Friends of Administration Will Dominate at San Francisco.

GOV. COX GAINS STRENGTH

Ohioan Will Not Accept Second Place on Democratic Ticket.

(Special to The News and Times-Democrat from The Washington Star)

WASHINGTON. — While major political interest during the week has centered at Chicago and the preliminaries for the convening there Tuesday of the republican national convention, dispatches which The Star will publish Sunday from its special political correspondents indicate that democratic presidential politics also is approaching the boiling point. When the republicans have made their nominations there is every indication that there will be a rapid crystallization of democratic sentiment.

Despite the strongest kind of opposition in a number of states to President Wilson and his policies, no one any longer seriously doubts that friends of the administration will dominate the proceedings at San Francisco and dictate the platform and nominations. The President himself is going to keep in close touch with the convention proceedings, and when the time comes his will be the dominant voice.

As the democratic situation lines up today, with practically all the convention delegates elected, opponents of the administration not only will be in the minority at San Francisco, but the minority opposition will be split up into irreconcilable factions. There is one element which is "wet" and is opposed to the league of nations. There is another element which is "dry" and is opposed to the league. There also are both "wets" and "drys" who favor the league. If any one can imagine Mr. Bryan and Gov. Edwards agreeing upon a platform and a candidate he will have no difficulty believing that President Wilson will be unhoped at San Francisco. Lacking such perceptive imagination, it looks like a Wilson convention from start to finish.

But even conceding that the President's influence will be all-powerful at the convention, democratic leaders are doing a good deal of worrying over the anti-Wilson sentiment in a number of states. For example, the situation in New York is pictured by The Star's correspondent at Albany, as follows:

Organization leaders, the democratic voters of New York state, seem to look on Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio, as their strongest man. William G. McAdoo is very popular with the independent voters and would make a strong run in the primaries even if he was opposed by the state organization. All that is needed to make McAdoo the strongest man in the field in New York is a positive announcement from the White House that he is not the candidate. That the Wilson administration, which would, undoubtedly, increase his favor with organization leaders upstate, many of whom are friendly toward him at this time, also Tammany still maintains a bitter opposition to him. There are many who believe that Tammany's opposition to McAdoo is not so great but that it would be quietly eliminated if the New York chiefs were once satisfied that McAdoo has no connection with President Wilson, as far as his political future is concerned.

That McAdoo is steadily gaining in strength and that Attorney General Palmer is losing ground is the report that comes from a number of sources, some of which were inclined a little while ago to look with favor upon the candidacy of the Attorney General. Gov. Cox also is looming large on the democratic horizon, and while he is not yet as far as the strongest candidate for President is being looked for second place on the ticket, McAdoo and Cox is a combination that seems to have caught the democratic fancy. That a vice presidential boom is not welcomed by Gov. Cox at this time is indicated by the Star's correspondent in Ohio, who wires from Columbus as follows:

The leaders here in the movement for the nomination of Gov. Cox as the democratic candidate for the presidency are meeting all suggestions from other states that the governor be given second place on the ticket with some more favored member of the party with the emphasis statement that the governor is not a candidate for anything but the first place and will positively decline nomination for the vice presidency.

But other men have declared they would not accept a nomination for the presidency and then have accepted it—given so far as a possibility as Theodore Roosevelt. The latter seems to be growing through the country that Gov. Cox in second place would strengthen the ticket. The matter who was at the head of it.

Great Britain, France and Spain are also interested in the controversy. Mr. Root said. He will also serve on the American committee which will hold its first meeting at The Hague on June 5 to formulate plans for a permanent court of the league of nations.

NEW YORK SECOND CITY IN WORLD

Census of 1920 Shows It Has 5,621,151 Population.

LONDON HOLDS FIRST PLACE

Manhattan Island Less Than Ten Years Ago.

WASHINGTON.—New York has fallen more than a million short of being the world's greatest city, according to figures given out at the census bureau Saturday night.

The American metropolis has a population of 5,621,151 persons, according to the 1920 census. Official figures obtained here Saturday show London with 6,726,753, is still the world's metropolis.

Since 1910 New York has gained 551,268 in population.

The 1910 population of New York was 4,768,883, showing that in the past ten years the size of the city has increased 17.9 per cent.

LONDON'S NUMBER LESS.

London, it is estimated, had a larger population before the war than now. New York, however, is easily the second city of the world. Paris, in 1911 had 2,888,000 inhabitants; Tokyo, Japan, in 1916 had 2,241,796; Berlin in 1916, 2,071,000. It is not believed that these cities have had sufficient growth to bring them to level of New York.

Coming to this side of the water, census officials expect New York to have a larger population than most states. While complete figures are not available, it is said that only Ohio, Texas, Pennsylvania, Illinois and New York state itself will exceed the population of New York City.

In giving out New York's population the bureau also made public the population of the five boroughs.

MANHATTAN SHOWING.

The figures show that one borough, Manhattan, with 2,281,103 inhabitants, is greater than the 1920 population of any city given out at the census bureau so far. It may exceed Philadelphia. Manhattan, however, is not as large as ten years ago, the population having decreased two per cent. Brooklyn, with 2,022,202, is now almost even with Manhattan.

The progress of New York's increase 17.9 is less than half the increase in the population of the city during the preceding ten years. Between 1900 and 1910 the population went up at the rate of 35.7 per cent. In the decade New York gained 1,542,651.

MEMORIAL FOR KITCHENER

LONDON.—Memorial services were held Saturday for Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, who perished four years ago when the British cruiser Hampshire, conveying him to Russia, struck a mine off the north coast of Scotland. German spies were blamed, but the mystery of Kitchener's death has never been solved.

LIMA'S WHITE WAY IS NOW ASSURED

Contract Is Awarded for Ornamental Lights on Main and High-sts—Work Will be Started Within Short Time

Street and Alley Intersections Well Taken Care Of—Standards Will be Placed on Cement Bases

Contract for the installation of a boulevard lighting system on Main and High-sts was awarded Saturday to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Co. of Pittsburgh, for $20,525. The only other bid considered was that of the Northern Electric Co., of Columbus.

The system will consist of 100 lampposts to be placed approximately 50 feet apart on Main-st from the Pennsylvania railway to the public square, and from West to Union on High-st.

The post selected by the light committee of the city council is the one light Cutler ornamental standard post, standing 13 feet, 3 inches high to the center of the light.

The work of installation will commence within five days after the contract is approved, according to Service Director Elmer McClain. L. E. Wheeler, representative of the Westinghouse Co., signed the contract Saturday afternoon and it is estimated they should be returned to Lima approved not later than the middle of this week.

Within five days from the time the contract is returned approved the Westinghouse Company is expected to have a force of men here to survey the ground and locate the exact position of each post. This work completed, work will be commenced on the construction of the 30-inch concrete foundations on which the posts are mounted. The steel tape which carries the current for the lights will then be laid, according to Consulting Engineer G. H. Gamper.

The line will be a lead covered steel tape, according to the specifications, under the sidewalk just inside the curbing, except at street intersections, where a conduit will be used.

Before the posts are put up, Gamper said the lines will be tested for 10,000 volts, although they are only required to carry 3,500 volts to supply the current necessary.

The posts will be put up at distances ranging from 49 to 54 feet apart, being arranged so that lights will come at all intersections of streets and alleys.

At the intersection of Main and High-sts one light will be placed approximately 25 feet from each corner in addition to the four at each corner, making two lights within 25 feet of each corner or eight 100 candlepower lights which will serve this intersection.

Two lights at each street and alley intersection will burn all night.

Owing to shipping conditions, no accurate estimate could be given as to when the lampposts will arrive here, but by having them shipped from South Bend, Ind., where they are manufactured at the George Cutler plant of the Westinghouse Co., it is thought they will be here within the next 60 days, according to Westinghouse representative. In the meantime work will continue on the foundations and laying the line, conduits, etc., required to carry the current.

The city has no lighting property on these streets to dispose of, according to Service McClain, all the lights, wires, etc., belonging to the Ohio Electric railway company.

WOMEN "PICKETS" AT CHICAGO

Militant Suffragists to Besiege Republican Convention.

CHICAGO.—Militant suffragists will picket the Republican national convention as they did the White House last year, it was announced at headquarters of the National Woman's Party here Saturday night. Miss Alice Paul, famous militant, is here in charge and has opened headquarters just across the street from the Republican convention hall. Purple and yellow banners fly in the face of the main entrance to the coliseum.

The picket line, it was announced, will form along the entire convention building and in front of every entrance, banners attacking the Republican party for "the continued disfranchisement of women" will be flaunted.

"We plan this demonstration during the convention because we cannot neglect a single opportunity to protest with as much vigor as possible the failure of the Republican party to complete ratification of the suffrage amendment," Alice Paul said Saturday night.

BOLSHEVIKI LINES BROKEN.

WARSAW.—An official statement says the Poles, resuming their offensive, had broken down the Bolshevik concrete fortified lines between the Dvina River and Boorysov and advanced 20 kilometers toward Buzdnet. The Ukrainians are advancing along the Olanza River.

HUGHES TOPS LIST OF CANDIDATES

Political Seer Predicts Outcome of G. O. P. Convention.

"LOGIC" TO GOVERN CHOICE

Thinks Wood's Strength Will Control the Nomination.

(By DAVID LAWRENCE.)

CHICAGO.—Logic is an irresistible force when once a Republican National Convention is assembled.

Logic picked Hughes in 1916 before it was known whether he would resign from the Supreme Court to become a candidate.

Logic will select the next Republican nominee for the presidency and will reject all aspirants except Charles Evans Hughes, William Howard Taft, Herbert Hoover, Leonard Wood, Governor Sprout of Pennsylvania and Governor Lowden of Illinois.

These six men are committed to the ratification of the treaty of Versailles and covenant of the league of nations with the Lodge reservations and are at the same time in accord with the conservative and traditionally vital principles of Republicanism.

Senator Hiram Johnson does not come in that category, on the peace treaty and he is considered radical on questions of taxation and other matters. He will try to stampede the Republican convention but as witnessed in 1912 and again in 1916, the regular Republican national convention is stamped-out.

DEADLOCK NOT UNLIKELY

Taking each of the six men mentioned above and analyzing their respective chances, the first ballots should disclose a deadlock between Leonard Wood and Governor Lowden. Prolongation of the balloting will mean the gradual elimination of both in favor of another set of contenders, Herbert Hoover, former Justice Hughes, and former President Taft would profit by the tendency to turn from Lowden or Wood.

Should a nomination still fail to be made after several ballots, an extraordinary opportunity will come to the Penrose-led or Penrose-directed delegation from Pennsylvania to exhibit to the convention the progressive record of Governor Sprout. He is a "dry" on the liquor question, has made a good record as governor of Pennsylvania and is a brilliant personality who would keep things humming during the campaign.

Republicans in both the conservative and radical groups like Sprout but the old line politicians put up the proverbial objection about "coming from Pennsylvania," which is supposed usually to have some bearing upon the soundness of Pennsylvania's vote anyway and the proverbial necessity of picking a man from a pivotal or doubtful state which he might be expected to add to the Republican list.

PENNSYLVANIA NOT HANDICAP

But the Republicans are confident that the entire eastern half of the country is as sure as Pennsylvania so that this rock-ribbed state is no more of a handicap than would be Indiana or Illinois. At least logically it should be no handicap and the Republicans as said before are great sticklers for logic.

The delegations are not of the emotional sort. Business men and leaders of the community are prominently represented in the delegations here.

Another thing about Pennsylvania. When Senator Penrose mentioned Senator Knox for the presidential nomination it was not urged against him that he "came from Pennsylvania." But the real leaders knew that Knox couldn't be selected if Lodge were temporary chairman. For Senator Lodge and Senator Knox are at opposites on the treaty question and the next Republican nominee is going to favor the ratification of the peace treaty with the Lodge reservation.

Governor Sprout meets those specifications.

Logic in politics touches plays on the popularity and individual appeal of the candidates. It is most significant that delegates galore will admit that Hoover is popular and that he "surely would win, if nominated." They say it in almost the same breath as they declare that he can't be nominated. Logic always has considered the popularity and advertisement of a candidate and there is no more widely advertised personality than that of Herbert Hoover.

In objection to Hoover, the same line of argument was taken by the supporters of Hiram Johnson in 1912, namely that Hoover is pro-British, that he always lived abroad and didn't vote in the United States and that he hasn't been a declared Republican.

REPUBLICANS CONFIDENT

All of these objections amount to something as between Republican candidates, but if Mr. Hoover were the Republican choice, few Republicans would be found saying those things, and certainly few Democrats would begin at this date to say harsh things about the former Food Administrator, the man in whom Woodrow Wilson bestowed such confidence before and after the European war. Indeed, skillful politics would mean the selection of Hoover in a year in which Democratic votes were needed to win. But the atmosphere in Chicago is different.

WILL BE QUIZZED CONCERNING FUND OF DRY LEAGUE

Col. Harry W. Walker.

Col. Harry W. Walker of New York, a close friend of William Jennings Bryan and formerly Bryan's eastern manager, has been subpoenaed to appear before a senate committee in Washington, it is reported. Colonel Walker believes he will be asked to tell what he knows about the so-called $23,000,000 fund of the Anti-Saloon league.

BIG THEATER NOW BEING PLANNED

Verbal Option Taken on Russell Property on Market-st.

DEAL IS NEAR COMPLETION

Another Step in Encroachment on Residence District.

Negotiations which may lead to one of the largest theaters and business blocks in Northwestern Ohio are on here, it became known yesterday when W. L. Russell announced that a big theater enterprise has taken a verbal option on the property at the northwest corner of Market and West-sts, owned by him.

"The concern has had an architect here and appears to want to do business," Mr. Russell said. "I am ready to make a deal with them and it is probable that the matter will be closed by the last of the week or the first of next week and a definite announcement possible. If the deal goes thru it will mean a big theater and business block, although I am not at liberty to give out details now," he said.

Mr. Russell acquired the property, a part of the Thornton Mitchell estate, some time ago. The buildings on the corner have been razed and the lot is ready for improvement. It is one of the most valuable available sites in the downtown section. The lot has a frontage of 150 feet on West-st, and 160 feet on Market-st, thus affording ample room for a large building.

While the name of the concern negotiating for the site for a theater could not be learned, it is understood to be representatives of a big theatrical merger which recently took place in the east who are handling the transaction here.

If this corner is improved by a modern building such as is contemplated, it will be another step in the westward trend of business and the encroachment upon what was until a short time ago considered purely a residential district. Men who have made a close study of conditions here have contended that business must necessarily expand westward to take in a large amount of the territory now occupied by residences.

Recent developments have proved this theory correct for a number of important new business houses have sprung up there within the last year and more are promised.

It is probable the theater, if erected, will be a vaudeville house, it is said.

WINS FOR U. S. SENATE

SALISBURY, N. C.—United States Senator Overman was nominated for another term in Saturday's primary according to information the senator received here Saturday night. Nomination is equivalent to election. Overman's majority was reported overwhelming. His opponent was A. L. Brooks.

INJURED BY HAND CAR

HENRY Masch, 335 W. Kibby-st, was struck over the shoulders when the lever of a hand car broke, while he was at his work at the Baltimore and Ohio shops Saturday. He was removed to his home in the Shuller and Frank ambulance.

FIGHT RESULTS FATAALLY

ELYRIA.—Louis Shepherd, 35, was unconscious from a fracture of the skull here Saturday night following a fight with a railroad workman. The victim was struck on the head with a pick handle. Police were unable to find the assailant. Shepherd is a railroad section foreman. He may die.

PARTY CHIEFS IN POLITICAL ROW

Wilson Raps Solons for Failure to Pass Measures.

MONDELL LANDS LAWMAKERS

President Refuses to Sign Three Important Bills.

WASHINGTON.—The sixty-sixth congress closed its second session Saturday. Both house and senate adjourned at 4 p. m.

Only one measure which Republican leaders had counted on passing, failed to get thru. It was the bill creating the governmental budget.

An hour after the adjournment, however, President Wilson, it was announced at the White House, had decided not to sign three important measures—the waterpower bill, the resolution repealing all wartime laws except the Lever and trading with the enemy acts, and a bill creating a commission to take up the print and wood pulp situation with Canada. He said he had not had sufficient time to consider any of these measures.

He signed the merchant marine bill despite indications that he would veto it, and also approved the first deficiency appropriation bill.

The approval of all appropriation bills make practically certain that there will be no extra session of congress until there is some emergency that calls for such action. The next regular session meets early in December.

BUDGET BILL FAILS

The budget bill, vetoed by President Wilson Friday night, was passed by the house Saturday minus the clause to which the President objected. It failed in the Senate, however, when Senator Pomerene, Ohio, insisted on passage of his resolution continuing and extending the campaign expenditure investigation. Pomerene's resolution got thru two minutes before adjournment.

The Senate during the day also passed a resolution by Senator Harris, Georgia, providing for making public income tax returns of corporations with profits over 25 per cent. A number of nominations of postmasters were acted upon.

The House Saturday agreed finally to a bill to deport and exclude foreigners who are anarchists or who believe in overthrow of organized government by force. This was the only house action in addition to passing the budget bill. Part of the time leaders were unable to keep a quorum present.

RUMBLING OF BATTLE

"The congressional session ended with rumblings of a political battle that is expected to run through the campaign. Early in the day President Wilson denounced congress for failure to conclude peace with Europe and for failure to act on high cost of living measures. Just before the house adjourned, Republican leader Mondell praised congress, declaring it had saved the government $2,374,480, 817.08.

The President's letter was written in answer to a protest by railroad brotherhood heads against congress adjourning at this time.

Wilson charged that the congress not only has "failed to deal directly with the cost of living, but it has failed even to give serious consideration to the urgent appeal of the people and by the secretaries of the treasury, to revise the tax laws which in their present form are indirectly responsible in part for the high cost of living."

Wilson said he had no hope that the continuance of congress in session would result in anything constructive and declared the congress was actuated by motives of political expediency.

Mondell pointed to the record of the session in the passage of construction bills.

"The program constitutes such important legislation as the transportation act, the woman suffrage amendment, the Greenback shipping act, the oil land leasing bill, the waterpower bill, the Sevier reclamation act, the civil service reform act and the act for enforcement of prohibition," Mondell said.

The Republican floor leader blamed Democratic opposition in the senate for failure to pass the budget bill.

"An attempt to meet the President's wishes has met with defeat in the closing hours of the session, being blocked by the action of Democratic senators," he declared, referring to failure of the budget bill.

Garret, Democrat, Tennessee, spoke for fifteen minutes in condemnation of the Republican congress.

"They have measured their savings by estimates of the department," he said. "But they have failed to solve the problem of the high cost of living or the great problems after the war," he declared.

The closing session of the senate was dramatic for that usually sedate body. Senator Smoot, in charge of the budget bill, allowed the Harris resolution to come up with understanding that Senator Reed and other Democrats would withdraw their objections to the measure. As the senate adopted the senator's resolution, the time automatically came under special rules previously adopted for consideration of the waterpower legislation. This gave Reed an opening to renew his objection to the budget bill.

The packer regulation bill will be the first business of the next session in the senate.

The house was in recess much of the afternoon, while members laughed and joked about the floor. When

COX STRENGTH INCREASES

Republicans Hand Soldiers "Gold Brick" Bonus.

(Special to The News and Times-Democrat)

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Chicago has succeeded Washington as the political center of the nation, the scene having shifted gradually during the week from Washington to the convention city. Special coaches carrying Republican members of the Senate and House to the convention left Washington immediately after adjournment of Congress Saturday with scores of followers accompanying them on the final leg to the convention city. By Sunday night, they will have joined the advance guard of leaders who have been on the scene for a week or more making preparations for the big event. Only a handful of Republicans remain in the nation's capital.

Principal developments of the week, however, transpired in Washington, notwithstanding the fact that the recognized leaders of the party have been in Chicago attending the preliminaries, which usually attract the greatest interest during the week before the convention. Disclosures made by witnesses before the Senate committee investigating the pre-convention expenditure of Presidential candidates provided the live copy for the political posters which moved on to Chicago several days ago to get first hand information on the situation. The Senate investigation was a life-saver for the publicity bounds who seized upon it as a means of covering up their utter inability to venture any forecast of the probable nominees.

Major-General Leonard Wood and Governor Frank Lowden, two of the leading aspirants for the Republican Presidential nomination, were in the limelight during the greater part of the week's investigation, and the reaction of the testimony was plainly evident in the news dispatches sent out from Chicago during the week. It seems to be admitted that they have suffered most by reason of the investigation, although it may develop that all of the candidates who engaged in the pre-convention campaign may eventually be eliminated and a nominee chosen who has a clean slate so far as campaign receipts and expenditures are concerned.

Promises of a resumption of the investigation after the Democratic national convention next month is seen in the resolution introduced by Senator Alton Pomeroy of Ohio, which seeks to extend the scope of the inquiry to include receipts and expenditures of the Presidential nominees, the national committees, and the receipts and expenditures of speakers for places in Congress. The investigation will not be without its moral effect, it seems certain, and may prove to be a deterrent to lavish contributions and disbursements during the coming Presidential campaign.

Congress adjourned since Saturday and will not resume sessions until next December. If the majority of the members have their way, despite the assurance from the White House, repeated in the Senate by Senator Oscar Underwood, the minority leader, that Congress will not be called into extra session during the interim unless a grave national emergency arises, the feeling will not down that the legislators will be called back to Washington before the fall election.

Ex-service men were handed their "gold brick" last week by the House, which passed by a big majority the soldiers' bonus bill. The members knowing full well that the bill would not be considered by the Senate before adjournment. The enactment of the bill came after the strongest "gag rule" methods that have been applied in the House within the memory of the oldest member. The debate, limited to forty minutes, was the worst kind of a farce, members who attempted to speak being dropped out by cheering and "cat-calls," in which a large proportion of the membership joined. It was evident to a novice that the House merely was making a bid for the soldier vote, well knowing that the legislation in its present form never would become a law. It is likely that soldiers' relief legislation will be enacted when Congress reconvenes, and many consider it all probability will be given the just claims of the soldiers and the public which will be expected to assume the tax burden.

Two loyal Ohio boosters of Governor James M. Cox for President, former Attorney-General Timothy S. Hogan and Thomas A. Duffy, chairman of the Ohio Industrial Commission, were in Washington this week doing missionary work for the Cox candidacy among members of Congress and other leaders of national prominence in the capital city. They reported that they found strong sentiment for Governor Cox among Democrats from all sections of the country and were more confident than ever that he will be chosen as the nominee of the San Francisco convention. The two Ohioans visited other cities in the East before returning home.

Representative Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, told the House this week that the present Congress has made more laws in the statute books than any Congress that ever sat. He compared its record with that of the last Democratic Congress. It was largely in answer to a similar speech by Representative A. B. Rouse of Kentucky last week, extolling the virtues of the Democratic Congresses of the preceding 40 years, 2 million copies of which are to be distributed by the Democratic national committee. In that connection, it might be said that former Speaker Clark's extemporaneous report to the Fess speech, made in his characteristic style, will prove to be effective campaign material.

The nomination of Frank P. Allen to be postmaster at Akron, sent to the Senate this week by President Wilson, served to revive the controversy between the executive department and members of Congress over the executive rule which prescribed that appointment of postmasters must be made according to civil service regulations without regard to the political affiliation of the applicant. This was true particularly of the Democratic members of the Ohio delegation, who were reminded early that about the only bit of patronage remaining to them had slipped out of their hands. The rule regarded as beautiful in theory, but Democratic members say that it doesn't work out in practice. They complain that no matter how it is applied, the party receives no credit, but always condemnation. If, nevertheless, a Democrat ranks first in the examination, the charge invariably is made by the opposition that favoritism is shown. If, on the other hand, as was the case of the Akron appointment, a Republican is high on the list, the word is passed around immediately to the faithful that their Representative in Congress has permitted a juicy plum to fall into the lap of an "undeserving patriot."

The truth of the matter is, the few political workers back home seem to realize it, that a member of the House or Senate has no more to say about the appointment under the present system than a rank outsider. True, a Senator may be able to hold up an appointment that is distasteful to him, but frequently even that is poor political strategy sometimes. It is said the Democratic members of Congress who are candidates for re-election will suffer more because of this rule than any other one thing. And while on the subject it may be fair to add that if the Republicans sweep into power next March, as is their confident claim, that same rule will be about the first thing cast into the discard after the inauguration ceremonies are over.

TOTS ENLISTED IN THE RED CROSS

Public Nursing Service Shows
Busy Month of May.

The report for May of the Public Health Nursing Service of the Red Cross shows that 45 cases were under their care the first of the month, number new cases 87; total number cared for 132. New cases at end of month were 46. Discharged to hospital 7. Died 3 and number of calls made were 551. Many interesting incidents came under the notice of the nurses and office officials. One day during the week Miss Marie Mueller, supervisor of nurses, was startled as she sat at her desk by a small voice which modestly requested the honor of becoming a Red Cross nurse, the owner of the voice being about three feet three in height and with skirts that have not yet reached the knees. This was little Lenora Kerr, of 113 North Metropolitan, and she had some very well defined plans for work. She wanted to organize a Junior Red Cross club, and presented the names of three companions: Thelma Murphy, of 714 N. Main; Garnet Derbyshire, of 527 W. Haller; and Roxine Dye, of 502 W. Haller.

"We want to help the poor little sick babies, and the tired mammas," said she. Miss Mueller took the little Samaritan in hand and gave her the necessary advice which will constitute her and the little ladies named, together with two more, a regularly registered club of the Junior Red Cross.

PENROSE IS REPORTED "SLIGHTLY IMPROVED"

PHILADELPHIA.—The condition of United States Senator Penrose Saturday night was reported as "slightly improved." Further than creating the impression that Penrose "was holding his own," the doctors in attendance refused to commit themselves.

Five physicians were hurriedly summoned to the Penrose home here Saturday late when it became apparent his condition had taken a turn for the worse. A consultation over the Senator's condition was held by the doctors, Charles Penrose, Alfred Strengel, Robert B. Carpenter, John B. Beever and Edward Martin. Penrose is the Republican national committeeman and one of the state's twelve delegates at large.

MEN AND MATTERS

B. M. Abrahams of Davenport, Iowa, spent Saturday with his brother, Sherman Abrahams, manager of the ready-to-wear department of Feldman's. They both leave for New York markets today.

Frank Papenhagen, of the Defiance Printing and Engraving company, spent Saturday in the city.

SHERIFF SELLS LAND
Sheriff Baxter sold at public auction Saturday a tract of 2 acres of land in Section 3, Shawnee-tp., to satisfy the court action of the Lima Home and Savings association against A. J. Dunn and others. The land was appraised at $1,500 and brought $1,500. L. E. Carter purchased the property.

NEW WARFARE IN EUROPE LOOMS

Turkish Situation Threatens to Resume Conflict, Report.

PEACE TERMS ARE RESISTED

Britain and France Disagree on Lovelite Matters.

(BY J. W. T. MASON)

NEW YORK.—Serious disquietude is developing in Europe over the strong resistance against the terms of the Turkish peace treaty. Turkish nationalist forces are becoming so powerful that a revision of the treaty and greater leniency for the Turk may become necessary. The entire southeastern part of Europe—Greece, the Balkans, the Caucasus—exists nowhere in that unhappy region. Revolution is developing even in Greece, the Greeks, proportionate to their meagre war sacrifices, are the greatest gainers by the terms of the peace treaty.

WAR BREEDING PLACE

The western powers have failed to make a settlement of Near Eastern problems showing signs of permanency. The Balkans have left Europe's worst potent breeding place for wars. Great Britain and France are not in cordial agreement over Levantine matters and Constantinople remains a hot bed of international conspiracies and deceptions. The Mohammedan subjects of the Sultan are making a very subtle fight for their future existence under an independent status. They are operating under the belief that some of the western powers is in position to send large military forces into Asia Minor. Public opinion in Great Britain, Italy and France are not in cordial agreement over Levantine matters and Constantinople remains a hot bed of international conspiracies and deceptions.

GENEVA—It is expected that well-known women drawn from all parts of the world will take part in the Women's Congress which is scheduled to open here tomorrow. Lady Astor is to represent the British Government, Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the prominent British Socialist, represents the International Labor Party, Mrs. Swank and Mrs. Bethwick Lawrence, the Women's International League, and the Women's Industrial League of Britain is sending two delegates. The League of Nations' agenda includes a proposal from Britain that the League should set up a department to help raise the status of women the world over.

The congress hopes to deal principally with the matter of equal suffrage, the abolition of slavery of women, equal nationality rights for married women, an equal moral standard, equal pay for equal work, mothers' pensions, etc.

There will be two preliminary days of conference for the international organizations. The general congress opens on June 8 with an address by Mrs. Call. The other American delegates will have important places on the program. Among them is former State Senator Helen Ring Robinson, of Colorado, who will speak with a group of women members of foreign parliaments, including Lady Astor, M. P. On another evening "How the Vote Was Won" will be told by half a dozen speakers representing as many countries which have made remarkable progress along woman suffrage lines in the last few years, and on that occasion Mrs. Frederick Nathan, of New York, will talk for the United States. Among the other interesting features will be one program presented entirely by women from the Orient.

One interesting feature of the program will be speeches on municipal government by women on city councils. Among them are Miss Eleanor Rathbone, who is Town Councillor and Justice of the Peace in Liverpool; Mrs. Planinkova, Town Councillor of Prague, Czechoslovakia; Mrs. C. Malcolm, Town Councillor in the Transvaal, Frau Lindemann, head of the women's department of the Wurttemberg Labor Office, will tell of the provision for equal opportunities and right to retain positions after marriage in the new German constitution. Frau Arenholt, of Denmark, and Frau Elma Munch will tell of Denmark's equal pay law.

Other advanced legislation to be presented includes the new 1920 Swedish law of marriage and guardianship; the 1919 Italian law on marriage, professions and civil status; sex disabilities removal act of Great Britain; mother's pensions in Norway and the United States of America will lead the discussion on women's status as it affects children.

This vast program discusses three types of questions outside of the extension of suffrage to the unfranchised countries. They are economic equality, civil equality and an equality of morals between men and women. Appointed commissions, composed of specialists, will offer constructive programs on all of these matters.

Among the fraternal delegates that are delegates from other organizations, officially endorsed for the International Woman Suffrage Congress are Mrs. Edward Gauntlett, a Japanese lady, specially appointed by women's societies in Japan to represent them at the congress; Dr. Bruhilde Wion, from Buenos Aires, a fraternal delegate from the Argentine Suffrage Association; Mrs. Walter Cope, of Philadelphia, from the executive committee of the Conference of Peace and Freedom; Madame Achille Durene, of Paris, representing the International Congress of Working Women; Mlle. Joanne Bouvriert, of Paris, second vice-president of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance, will also represent this International Congress of Working Women.

LOWDEN TO URGE ONE TERM IDEA

Says Plan Would Prevent Building Up of a Machine.

SPROUL REACHES CHICAGO

Harding Expected at His Headquarters on Sunday.

CHICAGO—Governor Lowden will urge upon the resolutions committee of the republican national convention adoption of a platform plank favoring a federal constitutional amendment to prevent a president succeeding himself in office, it was announced Saturday.

Lowden declared that "in the present crisis nothing would more tend to government efficiency than the knowledge that the president, whoever he may be, had but one term—that he must in the very first day of his term cope with the problem that must be coped with."

"I am persuaded that a chief executive who knew he could not succeed himself would make more real achievement in one term than in eight years if he were considering during his first term the question of his re-nomination."

WOULD ADD STRENGTH

"The next president is going to have to do unpopular things if he performs his whole duty in the serious situation with which he will be confronted. Nothing would so strengthen him as the knowledge that he'd be thru at the end of his term. Such a measure would also strengthen public confidence in the administration."

Lowden acknowledged he did not mean to limit a president to one term.

"He might come back later," he explained, "but if he did he would not be elected by a machine he had built up in his first term." The governor said it did not much matter whether the single term was four or six years, the resolutions for such an amendment be introduced while in congress the term was fixed at six years. He said the president ought to apply to cabinet members the rule that if any of them wished to run for president, he must first resign from the cabinet.

SPROUL ARRIVES

Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania took up his quarters on candidates' row late Saturday. Considerable interest is being manifested in Sproul because Senator Penrose is reported about ready to swing his support from Senator Knox to Sproul.

Penrose talked Saturday by telephone from his home in Philadelphia with Senator Watson of Indiana and other leaders here.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, the New York candidate, Saturday issued a warning to Senator Johnson and Senator Borah that if they "tried to commit the party in defiance of its traditions of isolation from the life and problems of the civilized world," by fighting for an anti-league of nations plank he will oppose them "with all possible emphasis."

Former Governor Charles S. Whitman conferred with Butler, Whitman said he and Butler agreed that the situation was badly mixed, Whitman later was caller at Hoover headquarters.

Many candidates Saturday extended their headquarters. Harding's headquarters were made ready for his arrival Sunday.

AIRPLANE AGENCY

It's Easy to Sell Them, Declares
Lima Dealer.

The latest sales agency to be established in Lima is for Curtis airplanes.

The manager, a Stanley Herr, a former Allen-co boy learned the secrets of piloting them in the army and now has the exclusive agency in eight counties—Allen, Auglaize, Hancock, Hardin, Wadon, Marion and Crawford. This territory is to be handled from Lima, Herr says, and he has taken up his residence here and purchased property at 503 S. Metcalf-st.

While it looks as the selling airplanes in Lima would be a slow business, Herr states he has already made one sale in his territory and has another prospective purchaser from Marion at the home office in Detroit at the present time to make a purchase.

"Just the same as selling automobiles," says Herr. "Take 'em up and show 'em the joys of sailing around thru the clouds and they all become enthusiastic."

GIRL SAVES ENGAGEMENT RING FROM HIGHWAY

CHICAGO—Miss Margaret Saigh and William Jabara, who are engaged to be married in June, were stopped by three men who threatened them with revolvers while they were out walking recently. Miss Saigh anticipated a holdup. She raised her left hand to her mouth and removed her diamond engagement ring with her lips. When the robbers searched her they found nothing.

HUGHES TOPS LIST OF CANDIDATES

cago is one of abundant confidence—any good Republican can win—that's the prevailing idea.

The chances of picking Hughes again depend to a large extent on what happens to the Wood delegates if the eminent general fails of nomination. Frank H. Hitchcock, former postmaster general, who managed the Hughes movement on the floor of the last convention, would probably throw his influence toward Hughes more readily than he would toward other candidates. Supposing it were assured that Leonard Wood might be named secretary of war if the Republican nominee is elected. It's a job he would enjoy having almost as much as the presidency itself. There's a strong possibility that Leonard Wood's strength in the convention may control the nomination of the next candidate if it becomes apparent that he himself cannot be nominated.

Briefly, the Old Guard would like to see Governor Lowden named but will not exert the steam-roller to accomplish that step. If he can't develop a majority spontaneously, the choice will turn to Messrs. Hughes, Sproul, Hoover, Taft with their chances in the order named.

The final rap of the speaker's gavel came, members cheered.

MEASURES SIGNED

Among the important measures which Wilson signed were:

The merchant marine bill, providing for the sale of the American merchant marine.

The army and navy appropriation bills.

The army reorganization bill, providing for a standing army of 275,000 men and revision of the army court martial system.

Resolution providing use of government owned radio stations for press and commercial messages.

Third deficiency bill, providing for immediate financial needs of various government departments.

The postal salary increase bill.

The rivers and harbors appropriation bill for construction, repair and preservation of public works on rivers and harbors.

The 1921 pensions appropriations bill.

Diplomatic and consular, sundry civil and District of Columbia bills.

Flashlights on G. O. P. Camp

Billy Morgan, former Lieutenant Governor of Kansas, appeared on the scene Saturday. He is the Tom Marshall of Kansas and like the genial vice president of the United States, he is always called on for a speech when oil is needed to quiet troubled waters.

Among other things, southern delegates look curiously, you might say, at those open work stockings on Michigan Boulevard. They wonder how the girls keep 'em warm.

You have to be up in Geography to read badges worn by Lowden boosters. The badge has a map of Illinois printed in the center. Above it reads: "What he has done for— and below it reads: "He can do for the United States."

Frank P. Walsh, chairman of President Wilson's commission on industrial relations several years back, wandered thru the Republican convention crowd Saturday. Walsh doesn't like his party much more than Hiram Johnson liked his in 1912. "I don't know which is my party yet," Walsh said Saturday.

Gov. Goodrich of Indiana, milled thru the Congress hotel lobby Saturday. The governor broke his leg some time ago and has to use a cane.

Mrs. Margaret Hill Carter, Kansas, novelist registered at women's headquarters Saturday. She taught school in Topeka, then got married and wrote novels until women got into politics. That is her chief business now.

You can get most any kind of a souvenir around the convention hall and Auditorium where the candidates hold forth. Wood had sunflowers, feathers of many colors and arm brazed with the slogan "everybody's for Wood." Johnson has songs, tiny Teddy bears and small airplanes which cut various capers when tossed into the crowd. Then there are all sorts of medals, flags, beads and such, bearing inscriptions—"who? Hoover."

Senator Johnson entertained the newspaper men Saturday afternoon with a recitation of the poem about Sheridan's ride in civil war days when informed General Wood would be at a point twenty miles from Chicago during the convention. Sheridan rode 20 miles to battle.

The Pointed delegates are going to "keep on pounding," it was said at his headquarters. The Washingtonians will vote for Pointed on every ballot, they promise, remembering that "constant pounding will break down most any thing."

Chauncey Depew, arriving Saturday announced he is emphatically opposed to the "doctrins of dying."

"Shakespeare and St. George, on whose birthday I was born, quip" said Depew. "But as for me, I'm going on."

G. O. P. CONTESTS COMPLETED

Lowden Gains Largest Number of Questioned Seats.

MOSES' CLAIM IS ATTACKED

Steam Roller Charge is Resisted
by the Committee.

CHICAGO.—The most important pre-convention work of the republican national committee was completed Saturday night when hearings of 137 contested seats in national convention were wound up. As a result of the hearings, delegates whose credentials have been in question, were placed on the temporary roll.

The two seats in the fifth congressional district of Missouri declared vacant because of fraudulent primaries in that section Kansas City. The credentials committee to be appointed in the convention will finally pass upon the decision of the national committee regarding the contest.

Owing to the fact that most of the delegates affected were constructed, an accurate count of gain and loss to the various candidates was impossible, but the information indicated the following results:

NET GAINS SCORED:

Gov. Frank O. Lowden gained 77 net gain 60. Senator War C. Harding gained four, lost net gain four. Jacob L. Ham gained six, lost two, net gain four. Senator Hiram Johnson gained three, lost none, net gain three. Major Gen. Leonard Wood gained 40, lost 56, net loss 26.

These seeming results by which would be: Alabama (one) Low delegate seated; Loser Wood, Arkansas (seven) Lowden delegates seated, Loser Wood.

District of Columbia (two) Wood delegates seated, all contestants Wood.

Florida, six Lowden delegates seated, Loser Low, two, Wood six.

Georgia, eleven Lowden delegates seated, four Wood delegates seated, four Wood eleven, Lowden four.

Louisiana, twelve Lowden delegates seated, Loser Wood.

Minnesota, two Johnson delegates seated, Loser Wood.

Mississippi, twelve Wood delegates seated, all contestants Wood.

Missouri, two Wood delegates seated, Loser Lowden. Two seats declared vacant.

North Carolina, seventeen P chard delegates seated, Loser anti-uninstructed Pritchard d gation.

Oklahoma, four Hamon, th Wood delegates seated, Loser Hat three, Wood four.

South Carolina, eleven Low delegates seated, Loser Wood.

Tennessee, two Lowden, two W delegates seated, Loser Lowden t Wood two.

Texas, eleven Wood, seven L den, four Harding, one Johnson gates seated, losing delegation instructed but reported to have W majority.

Virginia, fifteen Lowden d gates seated, Loser Wood.

BASED ON LEGAL EVIDENCE.
The public hearings with no paper men present even during executive sessions, resulted in decision being based on legal evidence rather than political expediency, many cases involving sutory technicalities being defer for qualification to sub-committee which reported back to the national committee.

The intimation by Senator Geo Moses, one of Wood's camp managers, that the committee's findings were influenced in some instances by desire to injure Wood candidacy, was vigorously tacked from the committee on floor by several members, including some who are openly committed Wood. The committeemen made statements refuting Mr charges were: Henry B. Mc Victor Highland, W. Va., James McGraw, Okla., Hamilton F. Ke New Jersey; Fred Stanley, Kansas; Hubert W. Hynick, Ohio. McG was Wood's campaign manager Oklahoma is said to have been preference, in committee and a p lic statement to a reputed $50, loan made by committeemen Jacob L. Hamon, Oklahoma, and broke with Wood, to a politician that state was largely responsible for the Moses charges.

All of the committeemen said t resented any imputation that t votes on contests were affected by their inclination toward any candidate and emphasized that chairman Will Hays must particula be absolved from any suggestion favoritism.

WILL DEMOCRACY WIN IN OHIO?

What of Result With Cox and Donahey Standard Bearers?

CONGRESSIONAL "BEE" OPENS

Nomination is Not a Cinch for Anyone in Either Party

(BY J. W. FISHER)

With James M. Cox as the nominee for president of the United States and A. V. Donahey for governor, would the Democrats carry Ohio? This question, propounded casually by an innocent bystander, starts a flood of thought about things political.

Governor James M. Cox is a well-known figure in Ohio politics. He has been governor of the Buckeye State ever since he won the office in 1913. His administration has been marked by peace and prosperity, and he has won the respect and admiration of his constituents.

And with Honorable Vic running for governor on the record he has established as auditor of state, one can well see how Ohio could do anything other than keep its place in the Democratic column in November. The Democratic state convention is going to come along some of these fine days after the August primary and if the name of Victor Donahey isn't high on the choice of the Democratic host at their standard bearer in the state, then something entirely unexpected sure will have happened.

Will Ohio go Democratic with Cox and Donahey heading the national and state tickets? It isn't a simple question to make predictions, particularly in politics, but this proposition looks mighty like a cinch. Ohio is neither a Democratic nor a Republican state, in the strict sense of the word. It used to be a rock-ribbed hide-bound, dyed-in-the-wool, 100 per cent Simon pure Republican. But that was before the days of Mark Hanna, Myron T. Herrick and Frank B. Willis. Governor Cox upset the Republican doge three times and President Wilson virtually turned Ohio upside down. Those who know Ohio believe that it would repeat the operation with Cox and Donahey heading the ticket. Here's hoping that the people of the Buckeye commonwealth will have ample opportunity to evidence their good judgment and give their support to two such worthy and deserving sons.

As full of hope as a coon hound is full of fleas, the various aspirant for the Republican nomination for congress in the old 4th district of Ohio, where enough political "blud" has been shed than would be necessary to float a canal boat already have the ground packed down on their respective ballwicks at least. Thus far, John C. Cable who is off the scent a few days for the purpose of attending the "politicians' and organizers" otherwise known as the Republican national convention in Chicago, has confined his peregrinations to parts of Allen and Auglaize counties, but he'll have to remember that there are four other counties that must see the size of the imprint of his hog in the soil. For he it knows that Johnny can't sing that famous old song "They're After Me, They're After Me" etc. And as they put it up to you on the outskirts of Battle Creek, there's a real one. It was expected that J. Ed Russell, of Shelby, one time congressman from this district, more as a result of skill and main strength than oratory or ability to make anything that would pass muster as a record would be the first to camp on the trail of "Our John," but "Representative" J. A. Pearson of West Milton, in Milamco "jes' natchally" beat him to it. Ed always was deliberate, tho, and he may meet up with the nomination coming back this time, if he hurries a bit.

It's a new experience for Ed to have the fight for anything. He's full kinds of a nice guy personally, but as a congressman the department at both himself and any thing else, is a good one. But what was intended to be said when his collection of paragraphs was stated on its melancholy way—for it is a doleful subject—J. Ed has finally gotten the injunction about keeping away from the water and has made the plunge. He didn't feel the pulse of the people of old Allen before doing it, but like the small boy with a blunderbuss, he just shot and will look afterward to see if he hit anything. He's announced that he is coming more ready on 14th. He's out of the out of this time at but he is coming up again. That's a male a nice fight—John and J. and Lafe—in three counties in a row—either pronunciation of row will fit.

And talking about congressional bees buzzing around the ears of such dry and numerous gentle folk, who have just how to go about it in getting the aid of the "yellow man" long about election time, he says: "The end of the road is coming, but it's coming slowly. Our Ben is coming."

better known as Benjamin F. Welty, an Allen-co product, down Bluffton way, is now in congress, completing a second term and wants another. Ben has been building a ship canal, leaving federal judges appointed for a term of years instead of for life, and keeping right after the racing sealways in the higher up class with the same energy and vigor he applied in pursuing the bridge trust, and various other trusts, as prosecuting attorney and representative of the department of the attorney general.

As a city solicitor many years ago, Ben had a provoking habit (so looked upon by malefactors) of getting his fingers on petty grafters and making "em squeak like trapped rats. When Ben does things he goes at the job just like a meant it, that's the reason he's been getting somewhere.

But Ben isn't the only one seeking preferment in the 4th, on the Democratic end of it. There George Mannix, Jr. of Greenville over in Darke co., who has dropped his declaration into the slot. And Clem Studevant of Sidney is likewise determined that Ben shall not have anything to do with the job just like he meant it, that's the reason he's been getting somewhere.

In the old days of the "bluddy 4th," they used to keep a good man in congress after they got him there, but they also got over the habit. Back in the 90's Ben LeFevre of Shelby represented the district three terms. Hon. F. C. Layton, right at this moment a third-term candidate for Common Pleas Judge served three terms as congressman. George Marshall of Shelby had only one term; R. B. Gordon of Auglaize, two terms; Harvey C. Garber of Darke, two; W. E. Touvelle of Mercer, two; J. H. Goeke of Auglaize, two; B. F. Welty of Allen, two. Once—in 1914—a Republican slipped in thru the back gate. And the same gink thinks he can do it again this year. His initials are J. E. R.

PARTIES CAMP ON NEUTRAL GROUND

Political Atmosphere of Washington Called Unique

EXCITEMENT THERE LACKING
People Not Worked Up by Parades and Bands

WASHINGTON.—(By United Press)—Washington, the mecca of all candidates, is the only city of size in the country lacking brass bands and street parades advertising presidential booms.

Lack of popular political excitement is the outstanding feature of the national capital now, according to travelers arriving from other cities of the land, where everything from a steam calliope to prayer meetings is being used to boost boons.

Nobody cares about the half million people of the District of Columbia who have no right to vote, they are sending delegations to the conventions. As usual, rival delegations from the District of Columbia will parade at each convention, contesting the right to represent their parties.

The political atmosphere of the national city is unique. Both great parties maintain grand headquarters in the same building in Washington. The Republicans are five floors above the Democrats, for some reason or other.

From this politically neutral ground, reinforced staffs are bombarding the country with principles of democracy and arguments of expediency, but no publicity is wasted on the local inhabitants, with the exception of press representatives.

The result is complete isolation from campaign excitement for the resident Washingtonian, who may exist thru this exciting year without seeing a single parade for a candidate or without being worked up by one campaign oration.

On the other hand, Washington is the city of political box-walks. Now or a day but leading politicians slip into this neutral ground, confer with leaders in and out of congress, and return to the "grass roots."

Leading candidates are maintaining headquarters here, from which they bombard the country with boom literature. News services are flooded daily with candidate "hand-outs" but not a word for the residents of Washington, who, if he were in the out home town, could hardly stick his head out of the door without bumping into booms.

A strenuous movement is on foot by a number of organizations here to emancipate Washingtonians politically. So far efforts have brought little result, the sponsors of the movement hope this will be the last campaign of political neglect for the District of Columbia.

Guides at the national capital daily usher hundreds of visitors to the senate statue of Levi P. Morton, former vice-president, who died recently and added to the information which they usually give.

"Now that Morton is dead, there are no living vice-presidents," they said.

McKinsley, who succeeded Morton in 1905, died in 1912. Vice-president during McKinley's first term, died before his term ended. Roosevelt was the next vice-president, serving only briefly before he succeeded McKinley as president. Fairbanks, vice-president from 1905 to 1909, died in 1914, and Sherman, his successor, died before his term expired in 1912.

A reporter very new to the Capital and the personages therein had just sent in his card to the House of Representatives. He had asked to see Congressman Joe Forney of Michigan, who has been doing business at the old stand ever since the Fifty-sixth congress.

Suddenly he had a nervous suspicion. He wouldn't be able to recognize the veteran chairman of the Ways and Means committee when he emerged. He would miss his chance of an interview.

In despair he turned to a dapper young first lieutenant of Marines who was standing by the door of the House.

"Say, do you know Forney when you see him?" he asked.

"Why, yes," the Leatherneck looper replied, with just the suggestion of a twinkle in his eye, which was all lost on the nervous reporter. "I think I can recognize him. Rather stocky built, sparse gray hair—hello, here he is!"

Sure enough, there he was. "Mr. Forney," the reporter began, extending his hand.

But the young lieutenant had beaten him to it. All he said was, "Hello, Dad!"

Outja boards have no more significance to their believers than does a fancy brass rod to members of the national house of representatives.

This brass rod, bearing at one end an American eagle, is known as the mace. To the congressmen it is an ever-present emblem of authority over them.

Ten minutes before the house is called to order each day, "Long" Jordan, assistant sergeant-at-arms, walks in with the mace and places it on a low pedestal beside Speaker Gillette's desk. When the speaker opens the session, the mace is elevated on a higher pedestal. If the house enters an informal session as a committee of the whole, the mace must be put on a lower pedestal again. After each adjournment, the treasurer brass rod is locked in a high place.

The mace comes into most prominence during the rare occasions when members of the house become so hot on order that a heated debate threatens to develop into an actual fight. Then the speaker calls on the caretaker of the mace, who approaches solemnly to the chamber's member, who is thus reminded that the authority of the United States orders him to behave himself.

Cardinal Gibbons has been requested to open the Republican national convention with a special prayer. The aged dignitary will be in Chicago convention week attending celebrations in honor of the silver jubilee of Archbishop Mundelein of Chicago.

FEAR TO MANUFACTURE FRUIT JUICES WIPED OUT BY BOARD DECISION

WASHINGTON.—The bureau of internal revenue Saturday gave a broad definition of a section of the prohibition act by stating non-industrial cider and fruit juices manufactured at home for home use, means "non intoxicating" in fact and not necessarily less than one half of one per cent alcohol.

"This will mean that many persons who heretofore were afraid to manufacture fruit juices will be able to do so without fear of interference by prohibition agents."

"Cider in the home may be allowed to turn to vinegar if no sugar is added," the ruling stated. "But this regulation is not intended to cover the commercial use of cider and fruit juices."

ALLEN-CO CROPS ON PAR WITH OTHER SECTIONS

Farmers thruout Allen-co. say that considering the late spring and heavy rains which were experienced, the crops will be on a par with those anywhere in Ohio, according to County Farm Agent L. S. Van Natta. The pasture hay and clover are fairly good. Oats however, are not up to normal, and the wheat is very poor, a large per cent plowed up. Potato planting is not extensively carried on in this county, but in adjoining counties there is as severe as in other parts of the state, according to Van Natta. A great deal could be accomplished if vacations would be spent on farms, especially those of the men who have some experience in that line, Van Natta says.

FARMERS PLAN TO SECURE MARKET FOR THEIR WOOL
At a meeting of the executive committee of the Allen-co. Farm Bureau Association held Saturday afternoon at the Farm Bureau room, Memorial Hall, it was voted to set aside a goodly sized fund to assist the farmers of Allen-co. in finding a market for their wool. Plans were also discussed to move the farm bureau headquarters into larger rooms, preferably downtown, but no location was decided upon.

W. D. Hanger, crop specialist of Ohio State University has been spending several days looking over the local crops situation in Allen-co. and discussed with the committee and Farm Agent L. S. Van Natta plans for standardizing different varieties of wheat in Allen-co.

BEN HURS ANNOUNCE NEW FRATERNAL FEATURE
Officers of the local tribe of Ben Hur have received an announcement, following adjournment of a supervising meeting of the order held at Crawford's Bootery, that a new benevolent feature to be known as the D. W. Gerard Memorial endowment association has been adopted.

The home of General Lew Wallace, who was a close friend of the founder of the society is to be purchased and maintained as a literary shrine. It was in this house that Ben-Hur was written.

It is announced the first D. W. Gerard memorial scholarship will be placed at Wabash college, Crawfordsville, Ind., where General Wallace was once a student, and competition will be open to all male members of the order.

CHRISTIAN CHURCHES TO RALLY LAST SUNDAY IN JUNE AT FAIR GROUNDS

At that time services will be dispensed with by the congregations and all will gather at the fair grounds, where a program and bounteous dinner will be served.

A. S. Church, of Lima, is president of the association. Rev. J. Enright, pastor of the Christian church, Columbus Grove, is chairman of public relations.

MINISTER CLAIMS A VALUABLE DISCOVERY

BUFFALO, N. Y.—A process which would greatly relieve the print paper shortage is said to have been discovered by the Rev. Louis A. Saeger of the Free Methodist church of this city. The process, that of de-laking print paper and making it into pulp to be used again, has been looked for by scientists and experts for many years.

Reverend Saeger said he had worked on the process for eight months before getting results.

He made the discovery, he said a year ago last April when he was about to give it up as impossible. He stated he had several offers from paper mills to buy his discovery but following the advice of his son, decided not to sell but to organize a company and buy a plant for the work.

CANNOT GIVE AWAY BUSTS OF BURBANK

OAKLAND, Calif.—Free to anyone—Two busts of Luther Burbank, famous horticulturist. These busts, made by Gertrude Boyle Kanno, noted sculptress, who created a society sensation by marrying Takishi Kanno, Japanese poet, have been a source of grief to the Oakland Chamber of Commerce.

They were first presented to the county to be shown as the county exhibit at the state fair. For some reason they were not used. Then for several months the busts resided in the Chamber of Commerce.

Finally they were offered to four different parks. The offers were declined, however, the excuse being given that there was no place to put them.

Later, when proffered to the Burbank school here, they were accepted, but several months drifted by and no one appeared to claim them. Recently the likenesses were given to a junkman. He proved ungrateful, for the busts were found abandoned near Hayward. The finder thought they had been stolen and brought them back to the Chamber of Commerce. Frank Fisher of the Chamber of Commerce says:

"I've tried to give them away and can't. They're in the way around here. Surely someone will take them."

BIG DEAL CLOSED
T. Reed Dunlap Acquires Valuable Market-St. Property.

Harry Altschul, owner of the Washington apartments, W. High-st., in which a Buick service station is located, has disposed of the property to T. Reed Dunlap, who paid $45,000 for the same.

The deal was handled thru Michael and Fishel. Mr. Dunlap will enlarge the service station to house 400 cars.

The Washington apartments, constructed in terrace style, are among the most handsome in the city. The lot has a frontage of 110 feet and a depth of 250 feet.

The entire rear of the lot will be occupied in extending the service station to house the large number of cars.

DELAY VOTE ON BONDS.
Petitions for the presentation of a bond issue to the voters for the construction of a $1,000,000 memorial hospital in Allen-co., will be deferred until after the presidential election, according to a decision of the Allen county memorial committee. Unsettled conditions and the lack of time necessary to create sentiment for the bond issue among the voters before the August primary is given as the reason for deferring action until later.

SANDLES AND BEALL TO SPEAK TO CLUB MONDAY
Hon. A. P. Sandles is to be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Wayfarer's Inner Club announced for Monday evening at the Normal hotel. "The Battle Cry of Freedom" is the subject of his address.

J. W. Beall will discuss the Ohio workmen's compensation law.

CARD OF THANKS
WDE wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy shown us during the recent illness and death of our dear daughter, Wilmethe.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson and family.

We are ready to prove to you that the Lima Cord Sole outwears leather.

Our Trade Mark is Your Insurance Policy

THE LIMA CORD SOLE AND HEEL CO.

447 N. Elizabeth St. Lima, O.

The Lima GRO-CORD shoe soles are in a class by themselves; they have commendable features that are not found in other soles.

In the GRO-CORD sole the wear is against the grain because all threads or cords are on end. They are built to defy the steady grind and are on the same principle as wood block street which outwear brick or cement.

All men who wear work shoes or semi-dress shoes should try a pair. Good for bad boys and not bad for good boys. They make real play shoes for children. Water proof and noiseless about the house and soothes mother's headache.

ONCE WORN ALWAYS WORN
New shoes with the Lima GRO-CORD sole or old trade mark Firestone are on sale at Crawford's Bootery, 138 N. Main St. and South Side Crawford Bootery, Chas. Hagerman, Manager, 707 S. Main St. Also at Homer & Steinle, 121-123 W. Market St..

Two letters just received, such as we are receiving frequently from different sections of the country:

Letter No. 1

The National Tube Co., Lorain, Ohio, May 24th, 1920.

The Lima Cord Soles and Heel Co., Lima, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—

I have been wearing a pair of your Cord Soles on my shoes here in the Steel Mills for ten months, walking over hot floors and scales, etc., while other employees wearing leather soles are compelled to have their shoes resoled every 25 to 30 days. Therefore I am sending a pair of shoes which have a GRO-CORD sole put on, and return same to me with invoice.

Yours truly,
L. A. SMITH.
Subscribed and sworn to before me this 24th day of May 1920.
Stephen Skodak, Notary Public.

Letter No. 2

Rochester, N. Y. April 4, 1920.

Mr. J. E. Grosjean, Lima, Ohio.

Dear Sir:—

The Cord soles you sent me I had them applied to my son, John's shoes November last and after wearing them over three months and they really didn't look much worse of the wear. I am satisfied that they will wear fully the life of a good shoe.

Very truly yours,
E. B. HALL

WARMING UP IN AUGLAIZE

Political Trotters Doing Preliminary Track Work
REPUBLICANS SEE VISIONS
Expect Ballot Derrick to Hoist 'Em into Court House.

(BY J. W. FISHER.)
Auglaize-co Democratic county commissioner Herman Brandewie has yet had no chance to entertain a feeling that he is a political interloper, usurper or anything of that sort, since he has filed his declaration as a third-term candidate for county commissioner. This mild-mannered, capable and splendid citizen of Egypt (in Auglaize-co) a few weeks ago informed this preserver of truth and justice that as it then appeared he would be "forced" to appear the lists for a third term. The situation as it then existed has not yet changed, and lest there be a shortage of timber for Democratic nominations for commissioner, Herman is in. That he was justified appears to be apparent, for there are three nominations to be made and before Brandewie started on the third time hike there was only one candidate—Guy Campbell for a second term. Since that time August C. Kiermeyer of St. Marys has also placed his gyroscope on the political track and that makes three. The water will be time for that trio if someone doesn't decide to increase the number before filing time is past. Dr. S. H. Sibert, three times coroner of the county, refuses to run again. For county surveyor there is just one candidate, William H. Rabe of New Bremen, a former soldier. For Common Pleas Judge there is no lack of Democratic candidates. Judge F. C. Layton seeks a third term, while Attorneys R. B. Anderson of Wapakoneta and Leonard C. Hirsch of St. Marys are new comers in that branch of county affairs which has to do with judgeships. There promises to be a spirited contest between O. W. Langhorst of Wapakoneta and Ferd Bailey of Clay township for the nomination of treasurer, while William Lear and Jacob Sebragle, both of Wapakoneta, will stake for sure scrap as candidates for sheriff. Lear was twice sheriff of the county and will have served four years as deputy to Sheriff Hinton.

A. H. Stuenkel of Washington-twp, believes he can crowd Representative J. C. Copeland into the discard in the election and is seeking the Democratic commission therefor. C. A. Koehl for recorder, John J. Kenny for clerk and Louis Stout for prosecuting attorney seek renomination for second terms, while H. S. Vauhel is all set for a second hitch at the job as probate judge.

Obsessed with the belief that there's "nothing" to it" politically this year over in Auglaize-co, and seeing visions of an entire Republican ticket being hoisted into the court house with a ballot derrick, the G. O. P. boys are tumbling into the maelstrom with a recklessness that betokens the belief that lightning is sure going to strike. Laying low and waiting for just such a chance as he sees now, former assistant Postmaster A. T. (Bert) Blume, a recognized "regular" of the Republican faith who refused to deviate from the straight and narrow way and hearkened not to the voice of the siren wall o' the wisp when the Republican hosts divided themselves with a line fence back in the days when Roosevelt refused to go farther with the party leaders, has announced in his meek and retiring manner that he would not be at all averse to standing as the party candidate for the highly important position of clerk of the courts, seeking to displace John J. Kenney, who is standing as a candidate for a second term, on the Democratic ticket.

And there is Karl Timmermeister, who was elected as city solicitor of Wapakoneta at long range or by the "absent treatment" last fall. Karl was out in Iowa or some other western state when the votes were cast and he was given a few more than was accorded his opponent. This same Karl T. now seeks the Republican nomination of prosecuting attorney of the county, believing that he has acquired a sufficient knowledge of law to pull him through. George H. Katterhenry of Washington-twp, would like wonderfully well to be commissioned to the position of handling the county's funds as treasurer and J. F. Hatfield of Wayne-twp, wants to be commissioner. That's the Republican office seeking situation in Auglaize-co at this time.

Eagle-eyed Vic Donahay, well known, time tried and true blue as the official watch-dog of the Ohio treasury in the capacity of auditor of state and who is being chased relentlessly by the Democratic nomination for governor of Ohio, has a big job on his hands, but he doesn't permit it to interfere with looking after his own, by gum!

Evidence of this fact was adduced when an Auglaize-co Republican paper fell into the hands and under the eyes of A. Victor. Therein he saw stated in cold type, apparently with malice aforethought, as they say in legal phraseology, that he, the aforesaid Victor, was a demagogue, because he had refused to permit a Republican appeals judge to cram $5.40 worth of feed in his system in one day.

Vic is an even tempered gezabo and doesn't easily rile, but he went right back at the G. O. P. editor with a reminder that on the same day he refused to permit a Republican judge to court the danger of developing a case of gout at the expense of the state of Ohio, he likewise trimmed a Democratic judge's expense account in the same manner. The man Vic Donahay believes in his job and simply because he is a Democrat it doesn't signify that another Democratic office holder is going to get away with an over-fat expense account, not by a long shot. He simply does on yanking such birds in either party up with a short turn. That's one of the secrets of Vic's popularity with the people.

In his communication of refutation fired at the Republican mouthpiece, Donahay further asserts, with an affidavit attached: "You further state that under the first term of Governor Cox, Donahay did not emit a single howl about extravagance, but waited until he became a candidate for governor."

Reminding the Republican editor that he (the editor not Vic) had supported Warren G. Harding for president in the late primary, Donahay suggests that perhaps the editor would not dispute Harding's word and then goes on the quote from the latter's paper, the Marion Star, date of February 24 1914, in which Harding commended Donahay for his opposition to the spending of the people's money without warrant. In seven and a half years Auditor Donahay has refused payment of extravagant bills aggregating $20,000. As a money saver for the state, Vic is there with bells on.

From the "World" of London:
He—"Do you believe that awful story about Mrs. Surbiton-Jones?"
She—"Yes, what is it?"

$25 FOR SLOGAN TO BOOST LIMA

Ad. Club Offers Prize—Suggestions Must Be in By June 18.

Twenty-five dollars for a slogan for Lima, is the offer that is being made by the Lima Ad Club in their campaign to boost Lima.

Every large city throughout the country has its slogan such as "Wichita Will Win," "E. Wayne with Might and Main," "Los Angeles in the Land of Sunshine" and Chicago, "We Do." There are any number of similar phrases that would in Lima and lend themselves to advertising this city. The Ad Club's ambition is to advertise Lima throughout the country and will have $25 in cash for the best slogan. It must of course be short and easily remembered.

This is a chance for someone to earn $25 easily and have the additional honor of naming the slogan for the best city in Northwestern Ohio.

Answers should be mailed to The Lima Ad Club, Norval Hotel, Lima. The office of the Ad Club is at the Norval. The contest will close Friday, June 18 at 3 p. m.

Three judges will determine the winner. They will be Mayor Frank A. Burkhardt, E. R. Leach, managing editor of The Lima and Times-Democrat, and Don Campbell, managing editor of the Republican-Gazette.

Through the courtesy of the Hotel Norval the club has obtained quarters in that popular hotel and all answers or suggestions should be mailed to the club at the hotel.

TROUBLE IS FEARED IN GERMANY

Government Prepares for Possible Riots Sunday.

BERLIN—Germany is prepared for the first constitutional elections the country has ever known, which will be held Sunday for the election of representatives of the people in the Reichstag. What developments may come cannot be forecast.

Reports were current Saturday that revolutionary sympathizers planned to seize the polling places and destroy the ballots, at the same time arresting candidates, but none of these reports was confirmed from any source. It has been generally reported for some time, however, that the military party intended taking some action to block the elections.

The government Saturday announced that "to avoid a misunderstanding" the Doehertiz republican brigade and portions of the Potsdam carabiniers are "undertaking march and battle practice."

As a matter of fact the maneuvers are merely alert precautions against a possible disturbance in Sunday's elections. The outcome will probably be announced Monday or Tuesday, due to a complicated system of counting and announcing of results. Scores of rumors are in the air about revolutionary coups and pogroms. The government, however, has consistently asserted it is confident there will be no trouble. The independent socialist party has planned picturesque parades of children, hence it is not believed sinister objects are in the air.

WAR PUT FAMOUS HYMN INTO DISCARD

LONDON.—The time-honored hymn, which for generations has been sung so lustily by church-going Britons of all denominations, "Onward Christian Soldiers," has been put out of date by the war.

In his parish magazine the Rev. J. H. Hopkinson, one of the former Vice-Chancellors of Manchester University, says:

"We have learned that war is not a matter of fluttering banners and clashing swords, and heeding drums, but merely a sickening and dirty butchery of men in water-logged or fly-infested trenches."

"We shall be less ready than we were to compare the movement of the Church to that of a victorious army. Hymns that we could sing unthinkingly before the war have become a lying blasphemy."

"Who would now sing, 'Like a mighty army moves the Church of God' with the Cross of Jesus going on before?"

"Peace has taught us as much as war. Week by week we learn more disturbingly that the conception of victory on which the Peace Treaty was based is an antiquated blunder."

RECRUITING OFFICERS HOLD CONFERENCE HERE

A conference of army recruiting officers from Marion, Bellefontaine, Piquette and Findlay, was held Saturday at the local recruiting station, being ordered here from Toledo headquarters. The above cities are included in this district.

MRS. ANNA FRANK DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Anna Frank, 44, wife of Jacob T. Frank, 701 E. 2nd N. Main-st. died at her home Saturday morning after an illness of three years from a complication of diseases.

Mrs. Frank was born in Rockingham, Va. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Sherr.

Besides the husband, she leaves a son Norman and four sisters.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 10 o'clock, sun time, at Salem church. Interment will be in Salem cemetery.

WHEAT SHOWS UP

Weather Fails to Damage Crop At State Hospital.

If the opinion of Dr. Charles Clark, superintendent of the Lima State Hospital is to be credited, that institution has one of the best of fields of wheat in the country, despite the inclement weather of a few weeks ago, which is said to have materially damaged the wheat in various locations. The hospital has 25 acres of wheat under cultivation, likewise 100 acres of hay; 50 acres of oats; 30 acres of garden truck and 100 acres of splendid corn, farming about 300 acres in all.

The outside work is done principally by the patients, those who are on the honor list, with the assistance of employees of the hospital. The hospital farm land while extensive, needs to be large to care for the 1,000 patients and employees attached to the institution.

HON. J. W. HALFHILL TALKS TO ATTORNEYS ON IDEALS OF THEIR PROFESSION

The Allen-co Bar Association held its regular meeting Saturday noon at the Barr Hotel.

Hon. James W. Halphill addressed the members on the history of the Barr Association and the ideals which it should seek to attain.

A luncheon was served after the meeting. This was one of a series of similar organization plans to hold at stated intervals. President Paul T. Landis presided at the meeting. Over forty Lima attorneys were present, including E. E. Everett, C. L. Fess, D. J. Cable, George Quail, T. R. Hamilton, W. B. Kirk, John Cable, Ben Motter, D. C. Henderson, R. P. GRAVES OF CONFEDERATES DECORATED AT CAMP CHASE WITH SOUTHLAND FLOWERS

COLUMBUS.—The annual memorial services for the Confederates dead at beautiful Camp Chase, near here, held Saturday under the auspices of the Camp Chase Memorial Association and the Columbus chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Mayor James L. Thomas will be master of ceremonies.

The principal address was delivered by Dr. Wm. L. Pickard, former president of Mercer University, Macon, Tenn., and at present pastor of Central Baptist church at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Following the invocation by Rev. Robert E. Lee Golladay, a firing squad from the barracks will fire a salute and taps was sounded as the graves of the soldiers who wore the gray were covered with flowers and moss from the sunny southland. An American flag was placed on each grave.

GIBBONS IS AFTER DEMPSEY'S CROWN

BY JACK VEELOCK.

NEW YORK.—Among the ringsters who covet the crown worn by Jack Dempsey are two of the world's greatest boxers.

One is Georges Carpentier, you will say, and you will be correct. The other? He is nobody but Tommy Gibbons, younger brother of the famous St. Paul "Phantom," who is getting ready to make a vigorous campaign for honors in the heavyweight division.

Gibbons is a counterpart of his brother Michael, only bigger of bone and proportionately better set up. And he is a "boxer" fool, according to a score or more of America's best performers in the class that does anywhere from 160 to 170 raps.

"But Gibbons is a middleweight and has no business in the heavyweight division," you are apt to exclaim.

Forget it. Gibbons was a middleweight about two years ago when he could make 155 to 160 pounds as easily as Jimmy Wilde, who has his full growth, can make 167. Today Gibbons is a strapping, clean-limbed, hard-muscled 170-pounder. He is as heavy as Georges Carpentier, and those who know him best, including the writer of this article, doubt very much whether the famous Georges could show him anything in the line of flatulence.

Tommy Gibbons has all the science, footwork and ring generalship that won his brother Mike recognition as one of the greatest boxers the game has ever known. With these assets as a ringster he has more weight and a much stouter punch.

Like Michael, the younger Gibbons is a modest, retiring and gentlemanly chap. There is a beautiful home in his body and he doesn't like to make claims for himself. Recently, while in New York just before sailing for England to seek laurels among the big boys on the other side of the pond, Tommy broke down and made this admission to the writer.

"Well, you see, I've outgrown the middleweight class. I'm a strong, light-heavyweight right now and can step into the ring at 170 pounds without carrying any excess flesh. In the years that I've been boxing, meeting all the good ones, and during the years I boxed almost daily with Mike I believe I've learned all of the rudiments of boxing and I feel pretty confident that none of the fighters today can teach me any new tricks. If they can I should like to learn them.

"When Georges Carpentier came to the United States I had hopes that I might get an opportunity to meet him. Nothing would suit me better for I can't see where I have any reason to fear any man of my own weight—and Carpentier is supposed to be a 170-pound man.

"But I guess I'll have to wait a while before I can get into the ring with Georges, and meanwhile I'm going to England to meet all the good fighters they have over there. If I can get matches with them, later when I come back to the States, it is my intention to challenge Jack Dempsey, for I am going to pump right into the heavyweight class as soon as I land in England. I hope to get on with Joe Beckett and Bombardier Wells. I'll take on anybody they've got."

Gibbons, you see, isn't boastful. He merely has confidence in his ability and he isn't afraid of any man living.

Gibbons and Eddie Kane, his genial manager, have taken the long way around in starting their campaign for a battle with Dempsey, in which, according to our opinion, they have shown excellent judgment, for the reason that if Tommy succeeds in beating a number of English heavyweights he will have won his status as a heavyweight fighter before he takes his hit into the ring on this side of the pond.

Just before sailing for Europe Gibbons decisively defeated Harry Grech, the Pittsburgh giant, the St. Paul fan credit for a clean-cut victory. And here's a tip-off on how clever he is.

Jack Dillon, who was among the best big middleweights in the world only a short two years ago, recently said of Grech:

"The man is the dearest boxer-fighter I ever saw. When I met him last I touched him only twice, once with a hook, hands with him before the first round and again when we shook hands after it was all over."

And Gibbons made Grech think better of several fights, was shooting the gloves at him. That's something to be proud of.

ILLINOIS WINS IN CONFERENCE TRACK AND FIELD MEET

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Illinois University Saturday won the western conference track and field meet with forty points. Wisconsin was four and one half points back of Michigan. The lists of contenders, which finished in the following order, contained a number of non-conference entries.

Illinois 40, Michigan 30, Wisconsin 25-1/2, Nebraska 11-1/2, California 11-1/2, Nebraska 10, Notre Dame 10, Chicago 7, Purdue 6, Kansas Agricultural 5, Minnesota 5, Earlham 4, Cornell 3, Ohio State 2, Indiana 1, Ames 1.

The Illinois squad was well balanced and got away with five firsts.

playing in all but six events, Chicago was weakened with Higgins out of conditions. California's slim entry list made a good showing.

Showers fell during part of the meet and considerably slowed the time. Two conference records were equaled, but none surpassed.

The mile relay which closed the meet, developed in a stiff fight between Illinois and Michigan on the last lap, Johnson of Michigan succeeded in pulling up on Emery of Illinois, but weakened at the finish. The time three minutes, 24.5 seconds, equalling the conference record made by Chicago in 1915. Illinois team consisted of Donahue, Prescott, Spink and Emery.

COLT WINS ON MUD PATH

NEW YORK.—Paul Jones, the three-year-old colt of Kai Parry, winner of the Kentucky Derby, splashed a mile and a quarter thru mud ankle deep at Belmont Park Saturday afternoon and won the $10,000 Suburban Handicap. His time was 2:09.55.

Commander Jones' Pontiac was second and Kilmer's Exterminator was third. There were only two other starters, Harry Payne (Whisper) and S. C. Hildreth's Thunderclap.

Lining up next to Exterminator on the outside, Jockey Andy Schilling got Paul Jones away in the lead. He seemed to take delight in the heavy going and opened up a big gap in the stretch. At the end, he showed signs of tiring and Boniface, closing in from the outside, overtook him with a burst of speed and just failed to get up. Paul Jones, winning by three quarters of a length.

It was one of the smallest fields that ever contested for a handicap. When a steady morning rain failed to cease and the track had become a mud path, Donnacanna, Wildcat, Cleopatra, Davy Harum and Corn Tassel were scratched.

Considering the condition of the track, the winner's time was considered very fast.

DOPE FOR THE FANS

Won by a drink of water? The term has perhaps never before been applied to the result of an athletic contest and yet a couple of long, voracious swallows of water lost the Marathon of 1912 to Christopher W. Gilsham of South Africa. Three miles from the finish the stout-hearted lad with the Springbok emblem on his chest was tearing along in the lead and although his tongue was sticking to the roof of his mouth, he was going strong and looking the victor all over. Suddenly a sharp bend on the Swedish highway, the control at Stockund, came into view and the temptation was too much for the parched runner, so he rushed to the attendants and gulped down nearly a quart of water. Off he started but only to find that his muscular power was stunned. His knees sagged and his eyes rolled, and his stomach churned frightfully, and while he was trying to get up steam Kennedy Kane McArthur, his fellow countryman from the veldt, went by him finally with about 300 yards and to flop dead beat he crossed the line. All Gilsham did was to help McArthur off the field to be revived in the dressing room.

It would be only a natural question to ask just now why should the incident be revived. There is a very good reason and it rests with the fact that the same Christopher W. Gilsham is entered in the Marathon at Antwerp and although eight years have flitted by since the Stockholm race, he is the first choice of his country.

TIGERS WIN

CHICAGO.—Claude Williams pitching made it easy for the White Sox to defeat the Detroit Tigers here Saturday 4 to 1. The hitting of Pennell and batting of Shano Collins were high lights. Score: White Sox, 4; Tigers, 1.

SCHOOLS WILL PLAY MONDAY

South high school will meet Central Monday afternoon at the College field in the last baseball game of the school season.

Fans are closely scrutinizing both teams and indications are that there will be a large number to root for their respective teams.

So far South has the edge on Central, having nosed them out 10 to 2, two weeks ago. Central had South outclassed in the first eight innings, but in the ninth, with an 8 to 2 lead, Central grew overconfident and permitted South to snatch victory from defeat.

The high school baseball championship of the city is at stake and the winner of Monday's clash will receive a fitting banner. The two teams are prepared to go at each other with the same pep and determination as was characteristic of them in all other sports.

Basel and Goodrich will probably be used by Hendershot as elabmen while Kohli will handle the sending for Central. South's definite lineup is not known yet. The following players will represent Central—Blunk, cf; Kohli, p; Edwards, 1b; Krein, 2b; Mendenhall, 3b; Accordman, rf; Godfrey, cf; Roseker, lf.

The weather permitting, Murphy park is expected to have the largest collection of baseball fans assembled in Lima so far this season when the game between the Lima Independents and the Dayton Triangles is called at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The record of the Triangles in past seasons is well known to Lima followers of the national sport and the way the local nine has been wallowing some of the out-of-town teams who came here expecting easy picking, it looks as the Bernie Holloran's crowd has something with which to make it interesting for the Gem-City players.

The game on Decoration Day was a disappointment to the management of the Lima team as well as to fans who witnessed the one-sided contest, but this is one of the things which are bound to happen at times. The Columbus Shannons came without a pitcher worthy of the name, and while the support might have been better with a little encouragement from the pitcher's box, the remainder of the team did not show the class the Limaites think they are entitled to. The pitching staff of the Lima team was also weak, and but for the inferior work of the visitors this would probably have proved disastrous.

This defect in the team has been overcome, for today's game, fans are assured by Manager Holloran. It has been keeping the wires hot the past week between here and Toledo in an effort to locate a twirler who will be the final link necessary to put the local team on a plane where it can show such champions as the Triangles an interesting game.

Holloran has not announced the name of the pitcher but assures that he will not be a disappointment, but will stack up favorably against Leake, who will hold down the mound for the visitors.

MACK NEAR TOP AS BASEBALL PILOT

BY HENRY L. FARRELL.

NEW YORK.—The Athletics had just finished batting practice.

John McGraw came on the field and started knocking the ball around to his Giants.

"Why doesn't Connie Mack warm up his team like that?" He just sits there in a dark corner of the dugout like a sphynx, a fan in a box remarked.

"He's scared to come out," another big near him answered. "He's the prize bug of the circuit."

"No, he's not," he's the greatest manager in the game. He'd have to have a 'finnish' last five straight years without getting the gate."

Which goes to show that opinions vary about managers.

Considering that some great pilots made diamond history and that some excellent directors are now handling ball clubs, the old wizard of the White Elephants can't be crowned the greatest of them all without an argument.

But he's mighty close to being the king of them all.

Beyond doubt he's the greatest developer of ball players in all times. In 20 years he has brought out Ed Collins, Frank Baker, Melvin, Barry, Murphy, Joe Jackson, Schang, Perkins, Bender, Coombs, Plank, Rush, Shawkey and Pennock.

In his first 14 years with the Athletics he won six pennants, four world's championships and finished in the second division only twice. In 1914 he broke up the greatest team in the history of the game and since then he has finished last in every year.

Of exactly the opposite type and temperament is Hugh Jennings, the exponent of pep, the creator of the famous "Bee-yah" and the noted maker of outfielders.

Jennings started in as a diplomat and he's been forced to make a hole in this line down to the present time.

The Detroit Tigers were full of "politics" and kindred maladies in 1907 when he took hold of them. He ironed out the rough places and won pennants in 1907, 1908 and 1909.

He has landed his team in the first division 16 out of 18 times and has never finished lower than seventh.

Detroit's wealth has always been carried in the outfield with such heavies as Ty Cobb, Sam Crawford, Bobby Veach and Ira Flagstad. The weakness has always been in the pitching department.

If Jennings had the knack of bringing out pitchers that Pat Moran possesses he would have the pennant market cornered.

The Miracle Man of 1919 who gave Cincinnati her first pennant and made a world's champion club out of a team of misfits is a genius with pitchers. He started Grover Alexander on the ladder to greatness in 1915 when he won a pennant the greatest staff in the National League out of a bunch that could have been bought cheaply by the bushel.

George Stallings, the "cattle king of Georgia" and the original Miracle Man of 1914 is another one gifted with the ability of getting "blood out of a turnip." He took the starless, colorless Braves in 1914 from the cellar in July to the pennant and the world's championship in four straight games over the Athletics.

He's a sly, a fighter and a great believer in team work.

John J. McGraw, the "little Napoleon of baseball" and also the David Harum of the diamond is a driver. He gets a club going over its speed and keeps it there by the sheer force of his fighting personality.

In 20 years the New York club has finished 15 times in the first division and has on six championships.

Outside of Christe Mathewson, McGraw has never developed a really great player. He prefers to go out and buy them and his club has the money to do it.

Some clubs don't need a manager. They just win by habit or custom. Take the Boston Red Sox for instance. Since 1901 under various managers they have finished 14 times in the first division, have won six championships and finished last only once. The club developed the great and only Babe Ruth, Larry Gardner, Lewis, Speaker, Hooper, Carrigan, Leonard, Shore and Mays.

The old days of the bully manager have passed. The pilot with personality gets farther than the wielder of the paddle. Uncle Wilbert Robinson, Pat Moran and Tris Speaker know how to handle men and it's a large part of their success.

LOVE AND MARRIED LIFE

By IDA McGLONE GIBSON
KARL'S SURPRISING LETTER

The letter dropped from my nervous fingers.

I wondered why Karl Shepard should write these things to me. "But ever any woman have just this kind of experience," I asked myself, and then my lips curled in a smile as I remembered that probably no woman of today could call up an emotion or live through an experience that was not old when Athens was young.

It was really a novel situation. When Karl Shepard had been where he could talk to me, where he could be every day, he had never opened his heart to me in the way he was doing now. And his peculiar psychology experience, which had seemed to have been duplicated in my case, although not to such a great extent, are most interesting.

"I wonder if he knows about little Mary," I said to myself as I took up the letter again. I read over the last paragraph, where Karl said he knew that writing to me was utter madness and acknowledged to myself that there was method in it.

Satisfaction in Writing

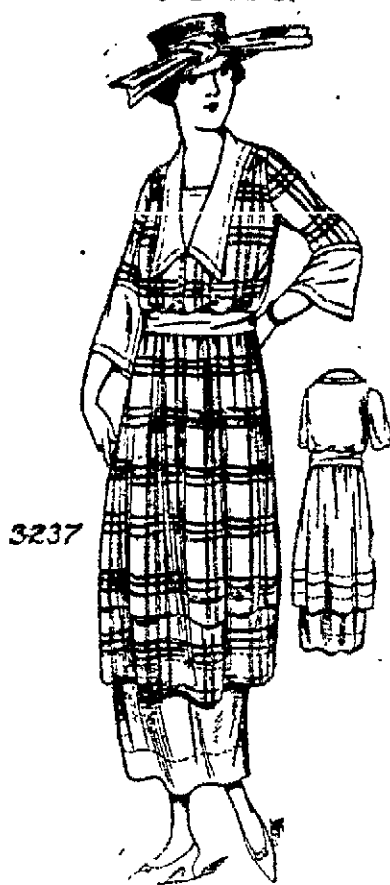

He seemed to get quite enough satisfaction in just writing me these letters without expecting an answer from me. As if to tell me that he was only writing these poetic and impassioned notes he continued, after acknowledging the madness of his effort, to tell me that:

"I believe that all humanity has this longing in some degree—this longing for what it can not—will not—ever experience. After all, it is only a matter of will. It is easy to follow the beaten track when once the barriers are down. The rays of light of our imagination are much more beautiful, much more satisfying than the dimmest heights ever reached by our more material being."

"I did not know when I started on what my friends called a wild goose chase that it was this longing that I wanted to satisfy. But I have come to know this, and as I sit here in the thick purple darkness I believe I have more nearly realized my hopes of the great and wonderful things for which all humanity craves and few if any ever attain than any other being in this wide world."

"I let myself easily down into this moody rhapsody—gently as a spider on its filmy web, for so vivid in this imaginary life with you I can hardly

STATE CONVENTION IS OPPOSED TO WET PLANK

KOSWELL, N. M.—The Democratic state convention in session from Thursday until Friday named six uncommitted delegates to the Democratic national convention at San Francisco.

United States Senator A. A. Jones, permanent chairman, ruled out of order an attempt to instruct the delegation for W. G. McDade for president. The delegates are to vote as a unit as the majority of those attending the convention may vote. Resolutions were adopted endorsing President Wilson and opposing any attempt to insert a wet plank in the party platform.

THE WOMAN WHO LOVED AND EARNED

JANE PHELPS

INDECISION

I did think over what Mary had said. I tried to look at it from every angle. And I tried to put my personal feelings out of the question—my feelings as regarded earning money, my independence, and my love of good clothes. The hardest of all to battle was the loss of independence. It isn't easy for a girl who has always had her own pay envelope to give it up—even for love.

I had earned my living so long before I married Robert. I had been accustomed to my own money, to do with it as I pleased, how could I endure to ask him for what I needed?

Each time this thought came, I felt sure I could not give up my position, that I absolutely could not be dependent upon anyone, even Robert. I recalled all the stories I had heard or read of women who had to ask their husbands for every cent they spent; and how it was given grudgingly often, or an accounting required.

"That would be awful!" I said to myself. "Think of saying to Robert, 'I want a dollar for this or that. It would be unbearable.'"

I did not think that Robert would ask me what I had done with money he might give me, but we would have so little I wouldn't feel I could take it without telling him what I needed it for.

If anyone thinks I had an easy problem, I wish I might put them in the same position. I had earned more than Robert, so had no hesitancy in indulging myself occasionally in little extravagances that would be out of the question if I stopped working. Not that I bought useless things, but nice powders and perfumes, a bit of real lace for a collar, silk stockings, and so forth. Then I was fond of the theater and had always paid for the tickets without saying anything to Robert. If I gave up my position at the shop I would also have to give up all these things. I had now but a week to decide.

As may be imagined, in my undecided mood, the days seemed fairly to fly past. Each night I would say to myself, "I must decide to-morrow—I will!" and each night I would still be uncertain.

Mary and Gardner came up after dinner and spent one evening. But Mary did not refer to our talk in any way, even when we were alone. I thought it strange, yet was glad she didn't. It was my problem now. She had told me all she thought might help me. I knew however, she was thinking of it. I caught her several times looking at me in a peculiar manner, then glancing quickly away when she thought I had noticed.

"What's all this Mary tells me, Robert, about your bringing Burch and Company up to date?" Gardner asked.

"Oh, there were so old facts they couldn't do business. I just made a

DIARY OF AN ENGAGED GIRL

By PHILLIS PHILLIPS

SATISFIED AT LAST

I demonstrated my complete emancipation from all family traditions today, as far as dress is concerned, and I feel heaps better for it. It was this way. I was out shopping, tout seul, wonder of wonders, and bought a scarlet evening dress.

That fact in itself may not mean much to the average hand, but it spelled deliberate revolution as well as joy to mine.

Ever since I was a tiny girl I have loved scarlet and yearned to robe my body in it, but it has always been taboo. The family objected to any such color, and that was all there was to it. I can remember clutching any stray pieces of scarlet from various work-baskets, in my childhood, and bearing them off tenderly to clothe my best beloved dolls in, for although I myself might not flaunt the persuasive color, my dolls could.

I wonder if all girl-children have this longing for a forbidden color? Well, be that as it may, this morning as I was primly selecting an afternoon frock, I passed a most gorgeously finely, flame-colored frock—such a rock! It seemed to have been whipped into wave billows of warmth, and blown into its faintly shape by the loving lips of young girls, who had found true ecstasy in fashioning its every fold. There it shimmered, before my dazzled eyes, tempting me as I was never tempted before, and flurrying its insinuating loveliness in my direction in a most personal way. To me it represented Youth, Love, Fire and Joy. I thought it without hesitating a moment, and it is now on its way to the house of my mother. That is all that I know for the present, that is all I need to know. The shimmering beauty is mine, whether I ever wear it or not. But I am planning to do so this very evening because Jack is going to take me to dinner and then to some swell dance at some friends of Ted Sloan's afterwards. I feel as tho my very fate hung upon my wearing that dress of my dreams.

One hour later. It has just arrived. It lies before me now in all its beauty, and the room seems lit with a great radiance, and my senses are singing deliciously in response to its every lure. I suppose my feelings may be compared to those of the boy who stands before his first dress suit, speechless with delight, and stured to new life by the fact that he is of the world at last. Funny how young things get that way, isn't it?

I wish Jack would have intuition enough to bring me some American Beauties; but then he never dreams that I am about to play the part of My Lady of the Flames this evening. I think he would feel a bit restless, if he did. No matter how he feels, I am sure he will think me lovely in this frock.

Now I know why red has been used by royalty so much in the past. Those old kings and queens just naturally knew that it made for buoyancy. And that that quality was most necessary to keep their devotees in a state of joyful adoration, despite the many tyrannies the crowned ones pulled. Yes, the monarchs of old were true students of psychology. I'll say.

Here I sit shivering in the most delicious anticipation imaginable. I feel like the heroine of my own movie somehow or other. Whether I shall have my audience with me, or again me, only the powers know. My fate is on the knees of the gods!

AT GREGG'S

Now Is the Logical Time to Buy Apparel

THIS WEEK WE OFFER TIMELY BARGAINS IN COATS, SUITS, DRESSES, FURS, SKIRTS AND BLOUSES

Unusual circumstances have caused considerably lowered prices on apparel. A backward season and a somewhat stringent money market caused the manufacturers of women's apparel to actually sacrifice garments. In many cases we were able to buy coats and suits at less than the actual cost of the cloth. These garments—together with our own stock of spring and summer apparel are now being sold at less than cost to make. We are now purchasing our Fall stocks of Coats and Suits—at higher prices than we have ever paid. There has been no reduction in the cost of cloth or labor—nor is there likely to be at this time. Hence we feel that we can honestly advise our patrons that now is indeed a logical time to buy.

Radical Reductions on All Women's Suits
Reductions of 1-4, 1-3 and 1-2

Juniors' Suits, Misses' Suits and Women's Suits—all finely tailored—all in styles suitable for immediate or early fall wear and fashioned in elegant fabrics. The styles are diversified—practically every style success of the season is represented. The size range is from 15 in junior size to 55 stout. Color: chiefly navy blue. The price reduction makes it possible to now buy a good suit at $25 to $50.

All Coats Reduced to About Half Price

We appeal particularly to the woman who drives an automobile. The woman who needs a coat every day—a coat she can depend upon—a coat of staple style—sturdy fabric and faultless tailoring. Get a coat at a low enough price that it can be used as a utility, business or motor coat. Our selection of Motor Coats—as well as dressy coats, consists of about 400 different styles—priced now at less than cost.

Our Entire Collection of Furs at a Saving

Summer prices now prevail on Furs—real reduction of 10 to 25% are now being made on our regular stock of carefully selected pelts—the finest line in Lima—in considering this reduction it is well to remember that this is really Lima's "Fur House"—and prices are never advanced before a sale to be reduced. Our reductions are genuine.

$12.50 to $17.50 New Marabou Capes,
Special $7.95

We recently purchased 100 Fine Marabou Capes from one of America's best manufacturers at a "price". They will be placed on sale Monday. Plain Marabou and Marabou with Ostrich trimming in Natural, Taupe and Black. Lined with Fancy Silk—all perfect—several styles.

One Lot of Sample White Wash Skirts,
Half Price

Would you launder a tub skirt for $5.00? Of course you would. Well, Monday you can purchase a new $10 White Skirt for $5—or an $8 Skirt for $4—or a $5 Skirt for $2.50—because it was used for sample and is slightly soiled—Gaberlines, Tricotines, Surf Satins and Piques—chiefly sizes 26 to 30 waist.

$39.50 to $59.50 New Spring Silk
Dresses $25.00

Fifty women will save $15 to $25 Monday if they buy a Silk Dress at Gregg's—and $15 to $25 is a mighty good saving on an investment of $25, especially if the $25 is spent for a really good looking taffeta or georgette dress. A this season dress—one that can be worn from now until well into the Fall season. Your size makes little difference for every size is represented.

AMERICANISM

LIMA audiences have become in late years well acquainted with and very partial to Dr. John Wesley Hill, but never have his auditors enjoyed or been so wonderfully instructed by him as on the occasion of his visit here the past week.

Always a master of diction and an artist in delivery, it was neither of these oratorical accomplishments which emphasized his talk on "Americanism," but contrarywise, it was the thought, the meat and substance, the sincerity and certainty of the conditions upon which he based his logic, that made his hearers harken to the dangers that are now facing this country and your individual peace and prosperity.

The seed being sown by word of mouth and printed tracts is falling upon unwilling but too easily productive soil. Few of the industrial workers of Lima wish collapse of property, destruction of individual rights and eventually, revolution. They would resent such a charge and justly so, but they are being fed upon literature which between the lines, means nothing less than anarchy, mobocracy and chaos. As presented, this literature alleges to quote statistics which are erroneous, describes and defines business as something which it is not, and could not be, yet our people as a whole and employers themselves are doing naught to off-set the cancerous effect which such doctrine is creating among the best people on earth—the men who work for wages.

A glance at the Russia of today as compared to even the Russia of the Czar, should be sufficient for the American workman to realize that none of us, neither you nor your neighbor, nor the man on the hill-top, nor the man in the ditch, can get something for nothing. When business becomes so taxed, so vilified and persecuted, so subjected to strikes of employees and hampered by delays in transports and materials, that to conduct business, managers must be criminals, then will the entire structure fall. Instead of the buzzing wheels of industry will be found the buzzards and maggots conducting the last sad rites over the corpse.

America is the home of the free and the Land of Opportunity only for him who is willing to give service; only for him who will help himself; only for him who will obey our laws and abide by our customs. You cannot expect to steal another man's wealth and property, unless you are willing to have your own stolen.

To such periods when Might was Right and the sword was the dominant power, no one wishes to return. We are done with massacre in the name of God, and live in the age of Law and Reason. Let each workman, each student, each man of profession or vocation, think long before he reads the primary lessons so freely distributed, which in their senior classes makes Woman a mere Thing, allotted for the night; Home, a cot in the community house; and Children, the parentless waifs of the commonwealth.

A LEADER NEEDED

THE supply of farm labor now is far less than is required to harvest the crops. All over the country the same cry is heard from the farmers—more men are needed. We are all lamenting that people will not go back to the farm. Yet none of us is willing to head the retrogressive procession, or, for that matter, fall in behind it. Some means of making this movement popular should be devised. A leader who is able to start a stampede for the farm is needed. He will be warmly received by the tillers of the soil and our supply of foodstuffs will be in less danger of spoiling where they were grown if he succeeds.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

RUMBLINGS from railroad workers because of long delays in settlement of wage scales; advance of interest or discount rates to six and seven percent by Federal Reserve Banks; a perceptible slowing down of the steel trade, and continued efforts of retailers to unload stocks, have featured the week in business circles, both locally and over the nation at large.

The most dominant factor of these features is the interest rates for money. Banks are quite generally demanding seven percent, not only for new paper but on renewals, yet in local instances these same banks are not increasing dividends to their stockholders. As a result, the anomaly is presented of banks with a book value per share of $125 to as high as $215, paying their stock holders as low as four percent for their invested money and charging them seven percent for their borrowed money. Certainly, bank stockholders cannot be charged with profiteering.

The reason that the interest rate is the far more dominant factor of the week's development is because it adds to the expense at which an industry, a merchant or any individual can transact business; be that business a peanut stand or an automobile factory. A six percent business is no longer fashionable, because money is commanding seven, and stock in a business paying less than eight percent annually is no longer considered worth par.

In the Lima district the slowdown is very apparent. At many shops, mechanics and even laborers are appearing at the gates, something almost unknown since 1916. Building operations have ceased so far as new projections are concerned, and only work under construction continues. Few individuals are so much as making repairs because of excessive costs.

The volume of business in Lima as reflected by bank clearings shows a decline of approximately half a million dollars for the past month. We are standing still, marking time as it were, and will continue to do so for many months to come. There will be no panic, there will be no bread-line, but gradual deflation must come and it will come automatically; that is, by our position of stalemate.

We must all eat, be clothed and have a domicile, and these are the necessities of which we hear so much. Anything else you wish to class as necessity, you may; but it is your definition, not that of actual principal need.

CHECKING THE USE OF GAS

WE sometimes suspect the Standard Oil company is charging us too much for its products; that it is lying awake nights to devise some means of making us better revenue producers; to encourage or tempt us into buying more of its products than we need in order that its coffers will be filled a little fuller.

But just now the Standard Oil company is putting the brakes on the use of gasoline, one of its most used articles.

Gasoline is needed for more useful purposes than joy riding. It is needed for tractors, for industrial uses, for trucks, and those needs must be supplied first. If we do not cooperate with the oil company in order that those needs may be served first we should be made to do so.

It will not hurt us to "lay off" for a few weeks. We will have more money at the end of the conservation period; our tires will be in better condition and we will have fewer repair bills.

YOUR NAME

GROVER
VARIATIONS — Groves, Graves, Groves.
RACIAL ORIGIN — Anglo-Saxon.
SOURCE — Descriptive, geographically.
Grover is one of those family names the descent of which can be traced straight to Anglo-Saxon sources and one of those of which the origin is plain to the modern eye. It falls within that large classification of surnames which may be followed back to words denoting topography or character of the country in which the original bearers of the names presumably lived.
In modern English the word grove has come to take on the meaning, as commonly used, of a clump of trees, or a park studded with trees. As used by the Anglo-Saxons, however, it meant a road, through the woods, and later it naturally took on the meaning of an avenue lined with trees.
The names Grover, Groves, Graves and Groves all come from this source. Families which dwell along such stretches of road naturally came to be distinguished at a very early period by their neighbors by such phrases as "that the grove" and the like, which is the reason that surnames of this character are of much longer standing as hereditary titles than those denoting personal characteristics or parentage. As the son lived in the same place as the father, he naturally acquired the same descriptive name without any conscious attempt at the establishment of a regular family name.

THE END OF THE ROAD

"Under the date of October tenth," Brainerd pronounced slowly: "I have traveled a long road, but I am near its end at last. When I have finished this, I shall lie down to sleep—the sleep that knows no waking. My work is done and there is no reason why I should carry this poor mangled body about with me any more."

"How well I remember the old fortune-teller who gave me the means of escape! And yet it was long, so long ago. I little thought then that I should ever use it. I had saved her little boy—her grandson, I think it was—from drowning. How strangely she looked at me out of her long, black eyes!"
"You will need it more than I ever shall," she said as she gave me the heavy old silver ring. "You will press this little spring and inside you will find your release—a death quick and sure and painless." Her gaze was fixed as though she saw things far away. "I see you before you, my bird, and then trouble, black trouble. The road winds round the hill. I cannot see, but the end is near. Her black eyebrows were drawn together and her hands were clenched. "The revenge that your heart will come to desire shall be yours, I promise you, and at the end you will remember the old gypsy, and will sleep." She put the ring on my hand and it has been there ever since. When I have completed what I have to do, I will take it off for the first time.

It is strange to think that my work is done at last. I thought that I should be happy when it was over, happy and at peace. But his eyes haunt me; I see them everywhere. There is in them that look of recognition, which changes to awful horror; then they fade slowly. Again I see them as they were, years ago, filled with the light of love; and slowly, slowly, the light changes to recognition, and then horror, and then—

"I cannot bear it! I, so strong in my hate—I cannot bear it any more!"

"And there is the boy, young James Randolph Stone. I suppose he would always seem a boy to me. He must not suffer in my place. He has been kind to me, always gentle and considerate, and I have let him bear my burden too long. I thought at first that the evidence against him was too flimsy, that he would surely be acquitted, and no great harm could come to him. But I see now that his life would be marred by suspicion unless the truth were known and that he would go through the world a marked man."

"And I am tired. I will right this wrong, at least, and beyond the Great Divide I may find peace."

"I remember well my roving childhood. We were quite poor, I think, though my father was an expert performer and rarely out of employment. He died so long ago. I recollect very little about him, except his violent passionate temper, and the exacting nature of his training. He would never be satisfied with anything less than perfection in my performance—that perfect, tion which placed me at the head of my profession and brought me my long-sought revenge. A blessing, or a curse, I do not know. "My mother was quite different. Far above him in station and well educated. It was she who taught all the fine things of life, taught me to crave refinement and beauty. Thanks to her unwearied efforts I was as well educated as most girls of my age, when she died. If only she had lived, things might have been different. Perhaps not. Who can tell?"

"She left me when I was only sixteen, so pitifully young and, I know now, so very beautiful! I can scarcely believe that my mirror once reflected large black eyes and hair, a pale, clear skin, and scarlet, curving lips."

"I was so young and so lonely! Every one in the company was kind to me; but they were a careless, irresponsible lot; and, while they treated me with great consideration and the respect due to the star performer, there was no real companionship for me. One of the older men loved me, very deeply and sincerely, I think. I can appreciate now his dog-like devotion, but I was too young then to know what it meant and took it as a matter of course."

"We were a good company, taken by and large, and never lacked for engagements. In the winter we played in vaudeville circuits and in the summer we had long engagements at popular resorts in the mountains and at the seaside."

"At the time of which I must write we were playing at a small town in the Northeast—its name doesn't matter—a place where tired city people went in large numbers to restore their tired nerves. It was a year after my mother's death, but I still missed her with un conquerable longing. I had formed the habit of taking long, solitary walks through the quiet country, where the serene loveliness of earth and sky calmed and refreshed my lonely young heart. She seems so far away, that sad little girl, like some one else, whom I could have loved and pitied!"

"It was a glorious day in the early autumn, I remember. The dogwood already showed crimson in the woods and the fields were ablaze with asters and goldenrod purple and gold against a background of gray-green and russet; I can see it as I write. I had wandered farther than I meant to go and, in climbing a rough stone wall beside the road with too much haste, I had slipped and given my ankle a nasty wrench. It pained horribly as I limped along the way and I was glad to bear the steady beat of horses' hoofs coming up behind me. I turned to see a handsome pair of chestnuts dashing toward me and, sitting in the tall cart, handling them with superb skill, a man—the man who became all the world and more to me."

"I stepped aside and raised my arm. He must have acted from a distance my painful progress, for he had pulled the horses down to a walk before I signaled him to stop. He bent from his high place and looked down into my eyes as I looked into his. There was something in his, even then, which sent a thrill through every fiber of my being. They were gray—clear and compelling. I think I must have known almost at the first that whatever he willed that I would do. He was so much older than I, his hair already graying at the temples, but there was no hint of age in his strong, upright figure."

"We gazed at each other in silence for a moment, or for many moments, I do not know. Then he said, smiling: 'A Diana with a limp is too incongruous. A Diana in a chariot will be much less so. You must let me take you wherever you are going, even if it is back to Olympus.' "I understood the allusion, thanks to my mother, and smiled back at him, happily. "It isn't as far as Olympus, but if you will take me back to C— I shall be very grateful. I have wrenched my ankle and it pains a good deal when I walk."

"He stretched down his hand to help me and I tried to climb into the cart; but the weight of my body on my injured foot was too much and I turned white and faint. "Wait a second. That's too hard for you," he exclaimed, and sprang from the cart, quieting the horses with a word."

"He took me in his arms and for an instant I lay like a child against his breast; then he lifted me into the cart. He sprang to his place and drove on a long way in silence, looking down at me steadily. At last he spoke again. "I don't recall what he said, it doesn't matter, but we were soon waiting like old friends, and he promised to come to the evening performance. He was older than his word and came again and again."

"There was no one to warn me against the growing intimacy. I saw him almost every day, and the days he did not come were long and blank to me. He opened new worlds to my young imagination and I traveled through them far and wide. I was never so happy as when, seated beside him, I drove with him through the pleasant lanes under the shining sun and sometimes under the great white moon."

Brainerd interrupted his reading and addressed the Court. "This part seems to have no bearing on the case, your Honor. Shall I omit some of it?"

The judge was a man of a broad experience and keen sympathies. The human document interested him. "I think it will help us to a more thorough understanding of the case if you right straight through. Proceed, if you please."

THE REVIEW OF THE RIALTO

Few Changes in New York Houses Are Scheduled

(By DIXIE HINES)

NEW YORK—Martin Brown has written a play called "An Innocent Idea." As far as it goes, it is all right, but he has not written lines, nor devised scenes, that correspond with the title. It is of the genus bedroom farce, and the theory upon which it is devised is evidently that if a lot of fun can be had with one bed, more fun can be had with two beds, with three something scandalous can be done, so he has written parts for three beds, a masculine night gown, a pair of gentle pajamas, two ladies in similar garments, and a delectable nightie. Then for good measure three elderly ladies with becoming nocturnal raiment are later introduced, which would seem to be sufficient excitement for one night, especially when the temperature begins outside. The story might be illustrated by the use of the rebus, a stylus, a few degrees of calculus and a sense of understanding. It is about an immoral man who wants to be elected president of the Bed-makers' association, some demonstrations, a young playwright whose drama of inertia and two members of the theatrical company who seek to inject "pep" into his work. Then there is a maid who is careless of a baby, the three beds in question, a young newspaper writer seeking revenge and a lot of uncatalogued characters. There are lines which are highly colored but genuinely clever, situations permissible only in farce, and a commendable tempo.

For the time being there will be few if any changes in the playhouses of the city. From the surrounding territory, however, come reports of preparations for the tag end of the season, and the early part of next year. "Scandals of 1920" are having their trials this week preliminary to the summer engagement here, and his usual edition of the "follies," with of Ziegfeld and Greenwich Village varieties, are being prepared. Richard Carle has a summer play called "The Sympathetic Twin" which he criticizes out of town declare shows chances of success, and from Washington, Baltimore, Atlantic City, Stamford and elsewhere, the sharps are predicting ample dramatic material for the summer. This season will begin next week, and the favor which has been entertained for the season indicated by topcats, will desert.

Of the recent plays produced here His Chinese Wife seems to show the most favorable progress toward popular success. It is a really amusing and interesting play of Oriental and Occidental morals and manners. Another successful cold weather farce, "The Passion Flower," has been brought back with Nance Neil, Lumsden Hare, Annette Esther, Alfred Hickman and others to play a post season, and this mid Spanish drama of passion may be responsible for the rise in temperature observed since the company arrived in the vicinity of the Rialto. "The Storm," which ranks third in the long distance record, will remain until it is removed to Chicago the early. This melodrama by Ingdon McCormick is nearing its 51st annual celebration.

David Belasco returned from London last week. The rumor that he to open a playhouse in that metropolis lacks confirmation. Immediately upon his arrival he finished the rehearsals of "Call the Doctor," his first play of the season, which is being presented this week in Washington. He has given it a good cast—it has already been acted a stock company, and the indications are that it will prove a winner. Rea Marney, a most interesting and delightful little actress, goes under his direction with this play.

It is rumored along the Rialto that David Belasco contributed something to the success of "His Chinese Wife," which was lately produced by the many Producing company. As the story goes, Mr. Belasco received a play from the original author, Ernest Halsey, and within him colored on the stage version. He is divided between this and "The Daughter," which he subsequently produced, but his faith was so keen "His Chinese Wife," then called "His Unwashed One," that he consented to collaborate and retained interest in the emoluments which earned.

The establishment of a permanent children's theatre in New York is an assured accomplishment, which Rachel Barton Butler is congratulated. Miss Butler, who is a relatively new but highly successful dramatic has been interested in this scheme for some time. She lately produced her own version "Alice in Wonderland" with tremendous success.

FAVORITES IN BIG ARRAY

Some Special Comedies Are Added Features.

B ESTHER WAGNER

AN EXTRAORDINARY array of new films will be shown at local theatres during the forthcoming week, with such favorites as Pauline Frederick, Wallace Reid, Pauline Starke, Dustin Farnum, Mary Pickford and others of equal prominence heading the various casts.

The feature of the week comes in the form of "The Corsican Brothers," from the famous novel by James Oliver Curwood. There's plenty of action in this picture, with bear fights, savage dogs, blizzards and general thrills. Pauline Starke and Niles Welsh are the most prominent in the cast.

Dorothy Dalton appears at the Faurrot today in "His Wife's Friend," a Paramount special production, while on Tuesday and Wednesday will be seen Maurice Tourneur's "Victory," with an all-star cast. This is said to be Tourneur's best work so far, so it must be some picture.

Fans smile approvingly when they see Wally Reid booked, and his newest picture will make their smiles broaden somewhat. It's "Double Speed," and will make an immense hit with everyone. The Faurrot will feature this picture on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"The Corsican Brothers," opens a three day engagement at the Lyric today, and stars Dustin Farnum. A dual role gives the well-known Mr. Farnum ample opportunity to display his strength and prowess.

Mary Pickford plays a return engagement of "Heart of the Hills" at the Majestic theatre today and tomorrow, while on Tuesday and Wednesday will be seen "Heart of the Hills" with Elsie Ferguson in the leading role.

Several special comedies will be exhibited this week, the funniest being Mack Sennett's "Go Whiz," at the Faurrot, and Harold Lloyd's "His Royal Snyss."

FAUROT—You have heard of "golf widows" of course—women whose husbands spend most of their waking hours tramping the links, leaving their wives to sit lonesomely at home. "His Wife's Friend" Thomas H. Ince's new picture, introduces Dorothy Dalton as the wife of an English lord who is enamored of the game of chess and neglects his young wife to spend hours working over intricate problems of the game. She is a "chess widow," but she becomes a real widow when her husband is found mysteriously drowned in a nearby lake. An old sweetheart of hers, caught just previously by the husband making love to her, is suspected of murder. In the thrilling developments, which lead to judge and back again, the mystery is cleared up in an entertaining manner. Henry Markham is Miss Dalton's leading man and the picture, which is a Paramount-Artcraft production, will be shown at the Faurrot for two days starting today. Other features of the program include the Pathe News and the Paramount Magazine.

"VICTORY"—The appearance of Joseph Conrad's famous novel, "Victory," as a motion picture produced by Maurice Tourneur and coming to the Faurrot next Tuesday and Wednesday, recalls the strange career of this modern master of fiction. Conrad comes in the rank of the sea in all his books naturally. He is a native of Poland, a master in the merchant service, and has roamed the ocean all his life. Until he was thirty years old he understood not a word of English. Then suddenly, as one inspired he began to write thrilling tales of the sea in that language and today his established himself as supreme in this style of fiction. His novels all have an exotic flavor and are written with a disregard of the conventional ideas that makes them all the more fascinating. "Victory" is probably his best and most famous novel. It is fortunate that a man like Maurice Tourneur, with a native love for the sea and an unimpaired knowledge of motion picture technique, should have been the producer to make it into a Paramount-Artcraft picture. In the hands of such capable players as Jack Holt, Seena Owen, Wallace Berry, and Lon Chaney the interesting characters of Conrad are certain to be faithfully portrayed on the screen.

In addition to this strong feature the Faurrot will have a fresh edition of the Pathe News and a new Mack Sennett comedy, "Go Whiz," with Charlie Murray as chief gloom dispeller.

REID—SPEED—LLOYD

Screen fans who liked Wallace Reid in his former picture, "The Reckless Road," will be delighted with his latest photoplay, "Double Speed," which will be on the screen at the Faurrot theatre for three days commencing Thursday next. While Wallace doesn't do any auto racing in the latter picture, it has much to do with racing cars, and the star as chauffeur for pretty Wanda Hawley, does some last driving that would do credit to Barney Oldfield. He is a breezy millionaire, reduced by a couple of crooks to earning a living and his adventures are said to furnish amusing entertainment. Tully Marshall and Theodore Roberts are also in the supporting cast. "Double Speed" will be written by J. Stewart Woodhouse.

The added features of the bill will include the Pathe News, the Holmes Travel pictures, Topics of the Day and Harold Lloyd's new comedy, "His Royal Snyss."

RECENT—"The Woman and the Puppet," Geraldine Farrar's latest Goldwyn starring vehicle, caused a big sensation in Paris when published there as a novel. Later the book by Pierre Louys was dramatized by Pierre Frondaie and attained such success as a play that the Parisian theatre managers prolonged its run for a considerable period. These two eminent authors collaborated in dramatizing the famous play "Aphrodite" which enjoyed such wide popularity in London and Paris. The novel was inspired by Goya's painting in the National Art Gallery of Madrid, showing a man being tossed in a blanket by four women. In every way, Geraldine Farrar plays the role of the wilful and beautiful Spanish girl, originally played in the stage version by the world famed French actress Reine Bado. The story is unique in many ways. It starts a three day run at the Regent today.

The big spectacular special production, "The Courage of Marge O'Doone," by James Oliver Curwood, will be shown at the Regent theatre this week. This feature is a tale of life in the great northwest. A bear fight, a thrilling escape from "The Nest," a combat between stalwart men and the daring of brave hearts are some of the big situations. Every member of the cast is a popular motion picture player.

RIALTO—Can Edythe Sterling stand Ask any man who has been married against her in a race. Beyond any doubt she is the finest equestrian expert recruited to the screen. Her feats and skill are known and respected throughout the whole West. For instance, during her husband's absence, in addition she possesses this added virtue: she can act.

A thrilling feature, "The One-Way Trail," brings Edythe Sterling to the Rialto Theatre today. This Republic feature will be a treat for those who love the untamed West. There is no end of daring riding and in this, Miss Sterling in the role of Wanda Walker stars; also gun play of a type which seldom is seen on the silver sheet today. An unusual picture, with the wholly unusual and refreshing Edythe Sterling—that is "The One-Way Trail."

LYRIC—Many of the exterior scenes in the Dustin Farnum feature "The Corsican Brothers" were filmed at Santa Catalina Island. This is the first and across from San Pedro, California, where the glass bottom boats are used so one may see to the bottom of the ocean and view the exquisite coral growth thru the crystal clear water. The picture will be shown at the Faurrot for three days starting today. Today's bill includes Larry Semon's funniest comedy "Home Sweet Home."

THE LYRIC MUSIC—The musical program today will include overtures, vocal numbers and solos by the popular Allison Quintette, while the Lyric Novelty Orchestra will offer some new jazz selections.

ROYAL—One of the most ludicrous situations ever filmed appears in "In Search of a Sinner." Constance Talmadge's latest Emerson-Loom production, released thru First National Exhibitors' Circuit, which begins at the Royal Theatre today.

The afore-mentioned situation takes place in the dining room of the Astor Hotel, during a banquet tendered Jack Garrison by "The Purty League." Sitting directly opposite Garrison at another table is Georgiana Chadburne played by Constance Talmadge, a charming widow of twenty, who had tried to make Garrison make love to her in her apartment on the previous night. Garrison is presented with a loving cup by the chairman of the Purty League who terms him "a good man on the straight and narrow path." As Garrison rises to make his speech of acceptance his eye falls on Georgiana, and his tongue does a tail-spin. The Purty League glares at the apparent vampire, but the cup away from Garrison and the banquet ends up in a rough-house.

Miss Talmadge is supported by Radcliffe Follens, Marjorie Milton and Carlos Gilis.

MAJESTIC—Rather than see his sweetheart's mother murdered, Jason Honeysuit shoots his own father in "Heart of the Hills," adapted from the story of John Fox, starring Mary Pickford and which will be shown at the Majestic Theatre, commencing today.

The marriage of the Widow Hawn to Steve Honeysuit was bitterly opposed by the children who knew that the older Honeysuit's love pleas were making him more likely to ensure him to marry the widow in order to get even with her valuable Kentucky mountain lands.

This production is Miss Pickford's latest from her own studios of which her mother is the business manager. She has accomplished the unique feat of mixing heart thrills with chuckles in a most delightful manner in this picture and the management of the Majestic Theatre, predicts that "Heart of the Hills" will be one of the most pleasing of Mary Pickford's long list of international successes.

Offers of $5,000 ransom money, published in newspapers by the father of the missing baby failed to bring an answer. NEW YORK—Half a score of popular issues in the steel, equipment, oil, motor and shipping divisions influenced the higher, movement of prices in the stock market. Friday's late rally was generally extended on the usual week-end settlement of contracts. Crucible, Republic and Railway and Steel Springs, Baldwin Locomotive, Mexican Petroleum, Mercantile Marine preferred and American Ship and Commerce were the strongest issues, their extreme gains ranging from one to almost five points. Reading was the only feature among rails, gaining one point. The closing was strong. Sales approximated 275,000 shares. Liberty bonds continued to yield to pressure and foreign exchange was irregular, the German rate, however, showing further strength.

MUTT AND JEFF—THAT'S WHAT JEFF GETS FOR SLEEPING IN THE PARK—

By BUD FISHER

Short Shavings

He had always suggested that he was much too good a player to indulge in billiards with inferior players, but one evening condescended to join in a game with some of the amateurs—just to show them how billiards should be played.

Alas! his style was bad and his play was worse. He missed the cue ball of course, and when he tried to pot the red he only succeeded in ripping the cloth!

"Of course," he explained, "this table is not full size—only about a quarter the proper size, in fact. I couldn't possibly play my proper game on it."

But the table, as it happened, was full size, and one of the club members became annoyed.

"I understand sir. As a matter of fact, this isn't our billiard table only one of the card tables. They've got the real billiard table in the next room, so we can't use it. They're playing a football match on it!"

"I heard that pretty little woman say the other day that she was going to do her best to make her Billy's life perfectly happy. She must be very much in love with her husband."

"That wasn't her husband she was talking about; it was her pet poodle."

Apropos of Henry Waterson's retirement from the Louisville Courier-Journal, a Louisville banker said to the great editor: "I understand, sir, that your idea is to start a paper of your own—a paper that will strike a new note."

"Well," fumed the veteran, "that would be a welcome change, indeed, for papers out here do nothing but note a new strike."

1st annual town fête by Nurses of St. Rita's Hospital on Hospital lawn Tuesday evening, June 15. Symphony orchestra. Everybody invited.
